Body Found in River at Providence May Have Been Thrown Off Boat

Providence, Nov. 3.—Foul play was back of the death of the death of the woman whose body was found floating in Providence River, in opinion of Medical Examiner Clifford H. Griffin.

The body is thought to be that of Mrs. Jenn's Davis of this city.

Dr. Duffin is inclined to believe she was hurled overboard in a fight on a boat. He said:

"Death was due to drowning, but I found I had every reason to believe this woman met her death by foul play.

SHOES MISSING.

"My reason for thinking so is not based entirely on the fact she had a skirt and waist wrapped around her neck, but one of her stockings was torn from her leg and the other one was torn, while both her shoes were missing.

"This in my opinion, would indicate that she was aboard some kind of a boat and had taken part in a fight in which she was overpowered and possibly thrown overboard. The body is in such state that I have not been able to perform an autopsy."

The head was wrapped in a skirt and waist separate from the dress the woman wore. The separate waist had been pinned by the neckband with a safetypin to the back of the collar of the dresswaist.

The waist was wrapped around the head, then a separate skirt was wrapped outside the waist.

HINTS FOUL PLAY.

In first examination Dr. Griffin thought the woman might have planned suicide and covered her head and eyes because she wished to shut out view of the water. But the damage to her stockings made him view the case as a more sinister one.

The police began investigation

YOUTH KILLS SELF BESIDE RESERVOIR

Marlboro, Nov. 3.—Strolling near the Metropolitan Water Basin today Anthony Murphy came upon the body of a well-dressed youth and was startled to note a hole in the left temple. He notified the police, who arrived in an ambulance.

The youth was Rupert A. Eaton of Church street, South Sudbury. He was lying on rocks that appeared to have been arranged as a sort of rude bed.

Sergeant P. F. Crafty and Officer George E. Brigham found a revolver in the water. One chamber was empty. Across the street was a coupe—the auto in which young Eaton must have driven from his home to the reservoir.

The youth was unconscious but still breathing. He was rushed to the Marlboro Hospital, where, a short time later, his mother, Mrs Henry Eaton, appeared. He died without regaining consciousness.

Medical Examiner R. M. Hunter gave it as his opinion that Eaton had committed suicide.

The mother could think of no reason why her son should have killed himself.

He had been employed in a paper bag factory in Waltham.

Girl Placed in Waverley Resort Had Planned to Become Bride of Tech Man

William F. Jardine, guardian for Dorothy Gordon, heiress to an estate of more than $100,000, who is now in the McLean Asylum at Waverley, admitted at a hearing before an auditor in the Suffolk County Superior Court today that he had bidden the young heiress in an insane asylum for more than a year.

During this time he admitted he had told all persons who inquired for her that she was in school.

He testified that he did not tell any of her relatives that he had placed the girl in an asylum, and, furthermore, had given orders to the asylum authorities not to allow the girl's uncle, John Gardner of Long Island, to see her.

He also revealed how a romance between the girl and a Tech student was blighted when she was placed in the Waverly institution in 1921.

Gardiner, the girl's uncle, is fighting to have Jardine removed from the position of guardian.

The case has been pending in the Middlesex County Court for some time and was finally sent to an auditor, G. A. Pevey, for hearing.

FIND NEW HALL CASE WITNESS

Another "Mystery Woman" Aids the Solution of Love Tragedy in New Jersey

New Brunswick, N. J., Nov. 3.—Deputy Attorney-General Wilbur A. Mott has discovered another woman "eye-witness" of the murder of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and his choir leader, Mrs. Eleanor Reinhardt Mills, according to reports here today.

Her identity is said to be known only to Mr. Mott and Detective James F. Mason, chief investigator. Neither would say whether the woman actually saw the commission of the crime or merely saw the principals on the Phillips farm on the night of the murder.

Working from a secret headquarters Mr. Mott is credited with having about completed the case. It is said he plans to begin presenting the case to the Grand Jury tomorrow, and that any further delay would be only for the purpose of strengthening his case for trial.

WITNESSES QUIZZED.

All persons connected with the case with the exception of the slain rector's widow, Mrs. Frances Noel Stevens Hall, were summoned to the Courthouse today by Special Deputy Attorney-General Mott, for a checking, it was reported, of evi-

HOLD BRIDE OF 16, SAY AGE FALSIFIED

Sixteen-year-old Mary Deeb of No. 1 Tyler street, South End, feared she couldn't get a marriage license she told her right age, so she said she was seventeen.

Likewise did George Simons reason and he declared himself nineteen.

They obtained a license and were wed. This was in Providence on Wednesday.

Today both were in Municipal Court to answer charges of falsifying to a marriage certificate and to face Mary's father, who sought a warrant charging her with larceny of $200. Judge Creed refused this warrant, but agreed the couple must face trial in Providence.

POLICE CAPTAIN KING 'DYING IN HARNESS'

He is dying "in the harness" as he always wished. His last thoughts are of the "boys" and while struggling for life he whispers farewell instructions to Superintendent Crowley, who sits at his bedside.

Six feet tall Captain King was one of the most picturesque figures in the department. Joining the force in 1892, he distinguished himself on a number of occasions by his courage. In 1902 he was appointed sergeant. In 1903 he became drillmaster and in 1914 a captain.

$10 CRAP FINE FOR WOULD-BE MAYOR

Lawyer Miller, Chelsea politician and candidate for Mayor, was fined $10 in the Chelsea court today for shooting crap in the rear of a shoe factory on Locust avenue, Chelsea, he appealed.

Arrested with Miller was Abraham Bronstein of Everett avenue, Chelsea, and Frank Manoli of Massachusetts avenue, Back Bay, who is alleged to be a professional gambler.

When the case was first called Tuesday morning all pleaded not guilty except Bronstein, who paid $10 fine. The other two asked for a continuance until today in order to procure counsel. They appeared today, but were without an attorney and offered no defence.

Manoli, who was also fined $10, appealed.

MAY FREE FOUR IN BLACK HAND DEATH

A new development today makes it likely that the three men and one woman held for the death of Bruno Montagna, whose body was found in a Cambridge pond, will be released.

It was stated that when the Grand Jury meets Monday the case against the four prisoners, now in the East Cambridge jail, will not be presented, and the investigation for the solution of the latest Black Hand murder will have to proceed along new lines.

The change in the case was caused by the arrival in Cambridge from Providence of Frank Di Sano, a brother-in-law of the murdered man. He confronted the prisoners and said he had never seen any of them before.

Among those arrested was a woman believed to be Mrs. Annie Montagna, wife of the slain man. She insisted she was not Mrs. Montagna, but Mrs. Giuseppe Fantasia of Boston, who was also arrested. The others arrested are Michael Gagliono of Boston, known to the police as "Little Brooklyn," and Frank Scopa of East Cambridge.

GIRLS DIE IN FACTORY FIRE PANIC

New York, Nov. 3 (By the Associated Press).—Three girls were killed, three more are reported dying and about a dozen were taken to hospitals seriously injured after a fire had broken out in a celluloid factory on East 13th street this afternoon and the flames had quickly enveloped the three-story building. About 40 girls were employed in the factory. Several jumped from windows as the panic spread. More escaped over roofs. Others were taken down ladders by firemen.

GETS A YEAR FOR HAVING TWO WIVES

Henry Schwartz, accused of having two wives and no divorce, today was sentenced to serve one year in Deer Island House of Correction.

DRY CHIEF CHARGES LAWYER 'JOSTLED'

James P. Roberts, head of the Boston field force of prohibition agents, says a bottle of whiskey was in the hands of a male guest at the Hotel Westminster's Winter Garden.

He declares that when he undertook to arrest this man he was jostled so in the corridor—about 15 men jamming around him—that he lost the prisoner.

Mr. Roberts lost his wrist watch in the scuffle. But he did get hold of one of the jostlers, he says, and ascertained that it was David A. Marshall, attorney at No. 40 Court street and living at the Westminster.

Attorney Marshall appeared before Federal Commissioner Hayes today on a charge of forcibly assaulting, resisting and interfering with a prohibition officer in performance of his duty. Attorney Marshall pleaded not guilty and was held for continued hearing November 6.

STATE FINDS NEW WOMAN EYE-WITNESS IN HALL MURDER

dence to be submitted to the Grand Jury.

The investigators, it was learned, intended to interrogate these persons in the order in which they appeared in the case, beginning with the two New Brunswick policemen who discovered the bodies of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and his choir leader, Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, under the crabapple tree on Phillips' farm.

MILLS VISITS SCENE.

The statement made by Mrs. Hall Wednesday when she answered a long questionnaire propounded by newspaper men, probably will be taken as her story for the Grand Jury, it was said, and it was for this reason that she was not called today.

James Mills, husband of the slain choir singer, visited the scene of the crime for the first time last night. He declared then that he thought the authorities had made a mistake in their failure to arrest all members of both families immediately.

"They might have learned something then," he said. "But it's too late now."

Mills added that he believed the eye witness story told by Mrs. Jane Gibson, the farmer woman of Hamilton road.

Warrants Drawn in Murder of Rector Hall and Singer

New Brunswick, N. J., Nov. 2.—A warrant charging murder has been drawn in the Hall Mills case.

The warrant, alleging murder "on information and belief," will be served as soon as the authorities clear up what they describe as "certain minor corroborative details."

The name of the person designated in the warrant and whether more than one warrant has been drawn was not disclosed.

THUMB-PRINT CLEW.

It is known that before going before the Somerset County grand jury with evidence leading to indictments, Judge Mott is awaiting development and printing of photographs taken by his men at the Phillips farm murder scene Wednesday afternoon, and the report of finger print experts on a thumb mark found on the railing card of the Rev. Edward W. Hall.

This card was propped with a pebble against the feet of the rector at the apple tree under which his body and that of his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, were found. It is reported that the thumb print is that of a person under suspicion in the case.

WIDOW CONTRADICTED.

Mrs. Jane Gibson, the "pig woman" who swore she saw Mrs. Hall at the murder scene twice on the tragedy night, September 14, emphatically assailed Mrs. Hall's interview answers, giving the lie to several of Mrs. Hall's most vital denials as to her alibi hours.

Mrs. Gibson's attack on Mrs. Hall's assertions was followed by similar assaults by James Mills, husband of the slain singer, and by detectives who insist that Mrs. Gibson's story is credible and stands up.

Mr. Gibson's assault on Mrs Hall's story came when she read Mrs. Hall's assertion that she did not leave her home the murder night between the hour of her husband's departure, 7:30, and the time she says she started in quest of him, 2:30 in the morning. Without emotion, but with firm enunciation, the "pig woman" said:

"That is a lie."

Taking up Mrs. Hall's statement that she has not been at the Phillips farm since she was a child, Mrs. Gibson went on:

"That is another lie. The Sunday before the murders people at the Parker Home for the Aged, near the farm, saw her there. God is with me, He knows. I am telling the truth."

HATES TO FIGHT WOMAN.

"This is where I saw a man and a woman. The woman was Mrs. Hall, whom I had seen at a church rummage sale and elsewhere. I recognized her. The man had bushy hair. I think he may have been a negro. He was a tall, broad shouldered, powerful appearing man.

"In the glare of the lights the woman's hair looked blonde. I could see her face distinctly, but I could not see the man's face clearly.

"I turned back in the lane. I heard voices, a man's and a woman's. They were away from the spot where I had seen the couple."

Mrs. Gibson said that she heard a woman ask:

"But how about those letters?"

Then she said she heard a man's voice. "Sss" as if making peace, a lot of mumbling, and then the voice of a woman," Mrs. Gibson went on.

According to the farmer woman, this voice pleaded:

Pope Watches Each Phase of 'Change of Government'

Rome, Nov. 3 (By the Associated Press).—Pope Pius gave intense interest to every phase of the armed but peaceful revolution in Italy which brought the Fascisti into power. His Holiness received information every hour from the Vatican secretaries, ever repeating the desire that bloodshed might be avoided.

A prelate who remarked that "the revolution" had been successful was rebuked by the Pope.

"It is not a revolution, it is merely a change of government," the Pope is reported to have said.

She is one of the Brox Sisters, singing trio in The Music Box Revue at the Colonial Theatre.

Incidentally, one of the songs the three sisters, Lorrain, Kathryn and Dagmar, sing, is "Homesick." But Lorraine isn't—not for the married home she had.

But she is to have another home ere long. Lorraine announced today that, as soon as the "nisi" period of her divorce decree expires, she is to be married to Winfield Scott of Fort Worth, Texas.

Furthermore, young Mr. Scott came into possession of his fortune yesterday, the very day Lorraine secured her divorce. He has inherited millions, she says, from his father.

Five years ago Lorraine Brox—that is her maiden name as well as her stage name—married W. L. Ginter at Edmonton, Canada. A girl, Marguerite, now four, was born to them. The Ginters had one home in Edmonton. The younger sisters, Kathryn and Dagmar, lived with their mother nearby.

DISCOVERED RELATIVE.

Three years ago young Mrs. Ginter took her baby and went away with her mother on an over-night trip. The younger sisters, Kathryn and Dagmar, were left alone at their mother's house for the night.

A storm was brewing. The sisters were afraid to stay alone. They went to the house of a young woman friend. Thunder crashed so in the night that the sisters arose and sought the room of their hostess. Then, as Lorraine said, they discovered that Ginter, their brother-in-law, was in the house. They supposed he was at his own home.

The Ginter home was broken up after the discovery made by the younger sisters. Kathryn and Dagmar, who accompanied Lorraine on the rapid-fire trip to Brooklyn, testified to catching Ginter in misconduct.

There was no contest. Lorraine says that she does not even know where Ginter is now.

MADE QUICK TRIP.

The case was scheduled to be called Wednesday but Lorraine's lawyer secured postponement to Thursday to avoid the matinee day. After Wednesday's night performance the three sisters made their quick "jump" to Brooklyn and were back with Lorraine's divorce in time for supper and the night show again.

GIRL SPURNS $25,000 MARRIAGE PRIZE

New York, Nov. 3.—Heiress to $25,000 on condition that she get married, Miss Ruth Spanier of Corona, Queens, has decided to continue selling bread, rolls and pies in her mother's store. Miss Spanier, twenty-one and pretty, was named beneficiary in the will of her uncle, Jacob Spanier, who died in Los Angeles, Cal. "I certainly will not marry for money," she said. "When I marry it shall be for love and I will not alter my plans just because of this bequest."

WORCESTER MAN GETS $1,200 FROM TROLLEY

Louis S. Mueda of Main street, Worcester, was granted $1,200 damages by a jury in the Federal Court today in a suit against the Milford & Uxbridge Street Railway Company. Mueda was a passenger on a car which collided with another car between Grafton and Hopedale, resulting in injuries to him. He asked for $1,500.

RHODE ISLAND WOMAN IS SLAIN

A mysterious telephone call to the undertaking rooms where the body was taken complicated the matter. A woman asked if the body had been fully identified as that of Mrs. Jennie Davis, as reported.

Then the speaker said Jennie Davis had a husband at Seconk, Mass., just over the State line, and a sister, Mrs. Brennan, at Bristol. She went on:

"That's all the information I can give you now. Possibly I could give you more but I am not going to. Watch for something today."

Then she hung up the telephone.

Mrs. Jennie Davis—if that is the woman—was known as "Block Island Jennie" because she worked on the Block Island steamers. Captain Edward Billiken says that the description of the body resembles that of Mrs. Jennie Davis who worked for him last season.

What was thought to be a $500 banknotes, printed on one side, which was found with 11 cents in the woman's purse, is a newspaper clipping of a picture of a $500 banknote printed recently in a local paper in connection with a political story.

MARILYNN HAS TO QUIT SHOW FOR A REST

Boston friends of Mrs. John Smith (in private life Marilynn Miller Pickford) are concerned over news that the popular little star of "Sally" was stricken during a performance in Philadelphia and taken to New York.

It was said at her hotel in New York today that she was victim of a nervous breakdown. Her place in the Ziegfeld show was taken by Mary Eaton, who has appeared several times previously in the Miller role of the show.

Jack Pickford is in New York, aiding in the nursing of his wife. He said it would only be a few days before Marilynn would be able to return to her work.

Her tiff with Flo Ziegfeld is said to be responsible for the nervous breakdown suffered by Mrs. Pickford.

WED WOMAN TO END BUSINESS RIVALRY

New York, Nov. 3.—Mrs. Pauline Fried, No. 35 Sutter avenue, Brooklyn, suing for annulment of her marriage to Henry Fried, a cloak dealer, of No. 104 Lenox avenue, revealed in testimony before Justice Fawcett in Brooklyn that her husband had married her only to stifle competition.

Formerly his employe, and the lodestone of his business, she had started a shop of her own. When Henry's wife died, he got into the habit of visiting her shop, made love and finally proposed consolidation of interests, both in romance and business.

After marriage she found he was prone to recall the memory of his first wife. He told her his love for the first wife had been the stronger.

Decision was reserved.

DRAPERY THIEVES ESCAPE OVER ROOFS

Patrolman Chester Burton of Charlestown, following information he received that several men were climbing over the roofs of stables on Stacey street, Charlestown, went to a room on Phipps street, and discovered the theft of twenty-one bolts of drapery value at $500.

The thieves entered a Stacey street stable, pried open foxes containing cloth, and removed their contents and then fled over the roofs of adjoining buildings.

Judge Gary's Medal
One Civilized Woman
No More Wife Burning
Black Shirts Now, Once Red

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1922, by Star Company.

HE has a little business of his own, the greatest industrial plant in the world, employing a quarter of a million men. In spite of that, Judge Gary has devoted his time and energy recently to the "safety first" campaign. He deserves the Seaman gold medal given him.

For 100,000 years men have concentrated on protecting property. "Money first" has been the motto lately.

Now, men of ability concentrate on general safety, not merely on the possessions of the individual. That's a good chance in a world that has gradually made public libraries and museums as numerous as jails and poorhouses always have been.

Arthur Williams, chairman of the "Safety Institute of America," presented the gold medal, as big as a small pancake, and among the spectators was an enterprising young international banker, James Speyer, who has given $50,000 to the Institute, of which he is treasurer.

Men of power now interest themselves in the safety of the crowd. One of these days their motto will be "No more poverty." And if they really attack that, studying distribution instead of accumulation, they will solve the poverty problem.

Mrs. Boeke, wife of a Hollander, once a missionary, now a skilled mechanic, is the daughter of Cadbury, the great chocolate manufacturer, whose treatment of his workmen was admirable.

The daughter inherited the father's conscience. She returns every penny of her fortune, all her shares in the company, to the workmen, appointing eight workers to own and manage what her father left for the benefit of the workmen in her father's factory.

The employes say she has no right to ruin herself and want her to keep part of the money. Her reply is that she has no right to money which she never earned.

That is puzzling. And it would NOT be a good thing if everybody did the same. The world needs hard work. The ablest men work, not for themselves, but for their children. You must let a hard worker have his way or you won't get the work. If he wants to spoil his children; let him.

But the day is coming, of course, when this young woman's action will be looked upon as most natural. What she does now voluntarily will be done at some future date by compulsion of law.

Once individuals freed their slaves occasionally. Then the law freed them all. Some day, men will see no great difference between owning every ounce of a slave's body and soul, and merely owning three-quarters of what he produces. That day is a long way off, which is just as well for this kind of a civilization.

FALL INTO SHERIFFS' AMBUSH

Mail Loot Is Recovered After Daring Robbers Are Shot Down

Wittenberg, Mo., Nov. 3 (By the Associated Press).—Jack Kennedy, veteran train robber, known as the "Quail Hunter," and Harvey Logan, a former railroad employe, were shot and killed today by postoffice inspectors after they had robbed a mail car on a southbound passenger train of the St. Louis & San Francisco.

The stolen mail, about 100 registered letters, was recovered.

Six postoffice inspectors, three railroad special agents and two deputy sheriffs were waiting near the scene of the robbery, which had been anticipated through knowledge of Kennedy's previous movements.

CUT TRAIN IN TWO.

Describing the robbery, inspectors said Kennedy and his companion stopped the train, No. 805, running from St. Louis to Memphis, at Seventy Six, a station seven and one-half miles north of here. Logan cut the mail and express car from the rest of the train.

The engineer and fireman were ordered off the locomotive, and Kennedy took it and the cars down the track several miles. Stopping the locomotive, the bandits entered the mail car. The three clerks were lined up against a wall. Kennedy inspected the mail, taking several pouches to the locomotive, which then was detached, and Kennedy and Logan rode on it toward Wittenberg. About 150 yards from the station they jumped from the engine and left it running wild.

KILLED, GUNS IN HAND.

Nearby was their automobile and concealed in the brush were the officers, who opened fire, and the bandits fell, revolvers clutched in their hands.

Kennedy has a record of seven train robberies within three years—1896-99—and has served twelve years in the Missouri Penitentiary for the latest of them. He has been at liberty since 1912.

How Bandit Got Name of "Quail Hunter"

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 3.—Jack Kennedy gained the appelation "Quail Hunter," just before he was sentenced to the penitentiary some years ago. Two policemen had found him lying in snow benumber with cold. Search revealed an army him lying in snow benumbed with a rifle strapped to the saddle. When questioned as to being so heavily armed, Kennedy said he was "out quail hunting."

MASKED MEN TAR FARMER

Six With White Hoods Tie Man to Tree After Giving Coat of Feathers

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Nov. 3.—District Attorney William D. Ingram and Sergeant McCan of the State troopers are investigating at Waddington an assault made upon Emery Ferguson, young farmer, who was tarred and feathered by a band of masked men.

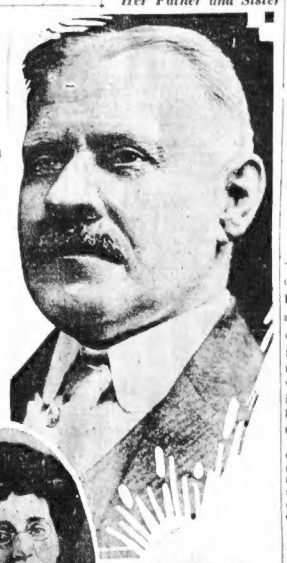
According to Ferguson's story, a party of six men seized him as he was milking his cows in the barn and applied a coat of warm tar and feathers to his naked body. He then was forced to put on his outer garments, was bound hand and foot, and taken in an automobile to some distant woods and tied to a tree.

The men, according to Ferguson, were white hoods.

Shortly after Ferguson was left bound on the ground, Nick Roberts of that vicinity drove along in a buggy and across the fields heard him moaning. He cut him loose and before he had time to ask for any explanation Ferguson started on a run for his home. Ferguson would give no reason for the attack on him. Neighbors said that he was not well liked.

Will Never Receive Husband Again

Mrs. Phelps Closes Home and Goes to Live With Her Father and Sister



WALTER V. PHELPS.

Wife of wealthy Vermont bank president says her married life was full of happiness until she met Mrs. George Wood, wife of a truck driver, with whom he is accused of eloping. Mrs. Phelps declares her husband is the victim of a blackmail plot to secure his money. She has applied for divorce.

MRS. WALTER V. PHELPS.

CHARGES PLOT TO GET HIS MONEY

Enosburg Falls Woman Closes Her Home and Files Petition for Divorce

Enosburg Falls, Vt., Nov. 3.—Mrs. Walter V. Phelps, wife of the wealthy president of the Enosburg First National Bank, and the most prominent citizen of the town, who disappeared from his home on the same night that Mrs. George Wood, wife of a truckman, also vanished, declares that her husband was the victim of a blackmail plan to secure his money.

"My husband was a good man. Our married life was full of happiness until he met Mrs. Wood. This is not the first time that prominent men here have fallen a victim to her deceptions.

WANTS ONLY MONEY.

"That woman wants only his money. I do not think he will remain with her. But whether he would come back or not, I can never receive him as my husband again. I have closed up my home, with all its happy memories, to live here with my father and my sister's babies.

"Why he did that I cannot understand. He had everything to gain here. He was president of the bank, active in all the affairs of the town, besides being a member of a grain, flour and coal concern."

Mrs. Phelps, a gentle, grey-haired woman, is heartbroken. She has moved from her beautiful home to seek comfort with her father, A. P. Croft, also wealthy Enosburg citizen.

All Summer the wife has been hearing in silence the gossip of the town. She says that her husband gave Mrs. Wood gifts of money and took her to social events of the town.

DENY ELOPEMENT.

Over in the tiny cottage of the Woods, the three children, Alice, twenty, James, eighteen, William seventeen, and the husband, all indignantly deny that their mother had eloped with Phelps.

Mr. Wood said: "My wife loves me and has always loved me ever since we met in Canada thirty years ago. Phelps is a good man, too. Without him I would have been destitute. He has loaned me money and in fact been like a good father to the family."

Alice, the pretty daughter, said, "My mother has gone to visit relatives, especially her sister, Mrs. Alice Gaucher, in Hartford, Ct. I myself put her on the barge going to the station. She has sent me music from there."

The Wood family appeared very

Jardine testified that Dorothy told him three or four times that she wanted to marry Newell, and stated that he told her "she never would."

UNCLE TELLS STORY.

Jardine testified that he sent Dorothy to school at the House in the Pines, Norton, Mass., about the time she told him of the romance between herself and the Tech student. He denied that he sent her there because of the romance. He testified that he had seen letters from the Tech man which he wrote regularly to Dorothy while she was at the school in Norton.

It was in March, 1921, that Dorothy returned from the school in Norton to the Jardine home, he testified. She had just become twenty-one years old. It was but a few days after her return from Norton, he said, that she was sent to the asylum at Waverley, where she has remained ever since.

Jardine admitted on the stand that the girl was twenty-one years old before she went to the asylum the last time, and that he had done nothing when she became twenty-one towards turning over her property to her. He also admitted that he took her to the asylum.

IN ASYLUM TWICE.

Jardine testified that Dorothy told him Newell was the only type of man she would ever marry—a clean, decent, upright, fine-living young man. He denied that he had ever tried to prevent the mariage or that he had sent Dorothy away to a boarding school in order to keep her away from the Tech man.

Jardine also revealed that another man wanted to marry Dorothy at about the same time the romance was budding between Dorothy and the Tech student. This man, he said, as told to him by Dorothy, was his own nephew, Ellis Jardine. He said that Dorothy did not want to marry him.

It was brought out in the hearing that Miss Gordon has been in the asylum at Waverly twice. The first time, according to the testimony of Jardine, the guardian, she was taken to the asylum in December, 1916. She was released from the asylum in September, 1918, he said.

NAVAL OFFICER TAKES POISON

Earl C. Carr, U. S. N., came from the School of Flight Surgery, Mineola, Long Island, to persuade his wife, formerly Miss Anna Callahan of No. 24 Raven street, Dorchester, to return home.

His pleadings failing, Carr muttered something about life not being worth living, drew his hand from his coat pocket and hastily crammed something into his mouth.

Screaming to her mother, Mrs. Bridget Callahan, for help, Mrs. Carr next summoned a neighboring physician, who gave first aid treatment, and sent Carr to City Hospital, where it was said he would probably recover.

Hospital physicians found the poison was morphine and that apparently the lieutenant had swallowed enough to kill several men, but that prompt first aid saved him.

Mrs. Carr left her husband a week or more ago, saying she was coming to spend the Winter with her mother. Her husband wrote, beseeching her to return and hinted at suicide. Last night he telegraphed that he would be here in the morning.

Fearing he would do something rash the wife asked for a police officer to come to the house. He did, and when Carr appeared normal the policeman left. A few minutes later Carr was unconscious from the poison he took after the officer departed.

DUBLIN P. O. RAIDED FOR VERY RICH HAUL

Dublin, Nov. 3.—Republicans blew up a number of railways leading into this city. The postoffice was raided and several thousand pounds sterling stolen. The raiders escaped.

London, Nov. 3.—The Dublin town house of Richard Mulcahy, Irish Free State Minister of Defence, and his suburban home at Rathmines, were attacked by a band of armed men, says a dispatch to the Times. Guards at the gates returned the fire of the invaders. One civilian was killed.

SEIZE GIRL AT TRIAL OF "BOOTLEG KING"

New York, Nov. 3.—Edith Stevens, nineteen and pretty, was again arrested when she appeared at the Brooklyn Federal Court, the scene of her recent acquittal in a rum-smuggling case.

She had come to attend the trial of Anthony Cassese, the so-called mill owner "king of bootleggers," with whom she had some months ago gone on several cruises aboard the alleged liquor smuggling yacht Edith.

The prosecutor had been combing the city for the girl without success. When he learned that Edith was in the courtroom he had her held as a government witness.

MAYOR CALLS FOR BUDGET ESTIMATES

Mayor Curley today served notice on heads of all departments that budget estimates must be submitted not later than December 1. The Mayor informed the department heads that, in cases where salaries of employes is below a fair maximum for services rendered, increases should be recommended, especially in the cases of employes receiving less than $2,000. In the cases of superannuation, he said, the retired employe's position should be filled wherever possible, by promotions within the departments.

GERMANS QUIT LABOR PARLEY

Geneva, Nov. 3. (By the Associated Press).—The German representatives in the International Labor Conference here left the meeting this afternoon, owing to differences concerning the use of the German language.

London, Nov. 3.—The German Cabinet, according to a Central News Dispatch, has decided to ask the reparations commision for permission to negotiate a foreign loan of 800,000,000 gold marks, for stabilizing the mark.

MAURETANIA SETS NEW RECORD

New York, Nov. 3.—The Mauretania, which arrived here today, broke the speed record between Cherbourg Breakwater and Ambrose Light, covering the distance in 5 days, 7 hours and 37 minutes. This is 1 hour and 47 minutes better than the previous record, also held by the Mauretania.

BANDIT CAUGHT AS AUTO IS WRECKED

Detroit, Nov. 3.—One member of a bandit quartet, which escaped with $500 from the West Kirby avenue branch of the Kelsey Wheel Company today, was captured and severely wounded when the automobile which the robbers commandeered, struck a post. The other occupant of the machine, all believed to be wounded, escaped. One bandit was shot by C. W. Fox, vice-president of the company, who thrust a pistol gun through the window of his office and dropped a charge among the bandits.

AUTOIST FINED $100 FOR NOT STOPPING

Failure to stop and then report an accident cost Samuel Frank of Flora street, Brookline, $100 today. Frank hit Harold Bender, of No. 119 Shawmut avenue, with his machine two weeks ago. The fine was imposed in Roxbury Court. Judge Ubsarn later discharged James T. Doherty, chauffeur, held for manslaughter in connection with the death of Byron Dasho of Cabot street, Roxbury, who died from injuries suffered when hit by Doherty's truck.

Luther Burbank Ill

Santa Rosa, Cal., Nov. 3.—It was learned today that Luther Burbank, famous plant wizard, has been confined to his bed for the past four days suffering from a cold. His condition today was reported "about the same."

SET WATCH FOR 100,000 CASES OF LIQUOR

New York, Nov. 3.—Customs officials are planning to ask the governors of New York and New Jersey to enlist sheriffs in coastal counties in checking the wave of liquor expected to break on these shores from a fleet of British schooners from the Bahamas within the next few days. New York harbor police already have been asked to keep a sharp lookout.

Cable advices from Nassau received at the Custom House stated that six schooners, with about 100,000 cases of liquor, had cleared during the week ending October 21. This was said to be a record number in one week since prohibition became effective.

Although the carriers presumably were destined for Tampico, Mexico, and St. Pierre, Miquelon, custom officials believed that, if they were approached by small craft outside the three-mile limit, they might be induced to rid themselves of some of their cargo en route.

The recent decision that foreign vessels could not be touched outside the three mile limit unless it could be proved they were getting in touch with shore and violating American laws through the use of their own small boats, who held responsible by custom officials for the departure of the fleet.

Conviction that extensive rum running enterprises are being backed by wealthy interests was reiterated by the authorities.

BILL HART'S WIFE TO RUSH DIVORCE PLANS

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 3.—The partial reconciliation between William S. Hart, two-gun hero of the screen, and his wife, formerly Winifred Westover, who was Hart's leading lady before her marriage, has failed. According to reports today from the film colony, while nothing definite concerning the filing of a divorce complaint by Mrs. Hart was stated, it was intimated that such action would be taken by her attorney as soon as she was well enough to confer with him. Hart has fully recovered from the mysterious illness which nearly cost him his life.

10c, 25c and 50c. Druggists everywhere

DRUG VICTIM IS OVERCOME BY VERONAL

Morphine addicts are turning to veronal to satiate their cravings when unable to obtain their favorite drug.

Suffering from an overdose of the substitute, Mrs. Frances Adams, formerly Mary Adelson of Winthrop today told attendants at City Hospital:

"I took the veronal when I couldn't get morphine, and so I got in the habit of using it. I just took an overdose. There was no suicidal intent. It was just an accident."

Frances Adams.

Mrs. Adams was found unconscious in her room at No. 98 West Concord street by her landlady and taken from there to the hospital. She said her mother is Mrs. George Hollywood of Pleasant Park road, Winthrop.

Physicians at the hospital today said that virtually all women treated there for overdose of veronal were drug addicts of some form and many were heavy drinkers.

Doctors assert that persons given to excess of narcotics or liquor often turn to veronal to produce sleep when recovering from debauches.

KEEPS MUM, GETS TRIP TO COURT

Practice of married women to seek information about the movements of their husbands caused Dick Lepoff, taxi owner, to instruct all drivers "never to tell anything to anyone."

Obedience to this rule near cost John J. Barry, widely known as "J. J." and "Red," erstwhile bondsman and man about town, his liberty.

It was the reluctance of Barry to talk when questioned about driving two fur thieves from the Little building with $3,000 worth of loot that caused the police to arrest him as accessory after the fact.

Today in municipal court Barry told how the men had hired him to drive to Cochituate, how they had brought out big bundles from the Little building and how he had gone to the place directed and there had been surprised by police.

Judge Lourie dismissed the case, saying there was not sufficient evidence to warrant holding Barry for the grand jury.

BORAH WARNS OF THIRD PARTY TRIUMPH

Spokane, Wash., Nov. 2.—The third party movement will sweep the country in 1924, unless the Republican party senses the unrest now being manifested, Senator William E. Borah predicted here. "The economic conditions demand a change and if the Republican party does not give it another will," he said. "My great hope is the Republican party will give it, and what little influence I have is being extended in that direction."

HUGHES OFFERS CO-OPERATION TO MUSSOLINI

Washington, Nov. 3.—Secretary of State Hughes today sent a cablegram to Benito Mussolini, the new Fascisti premier of Italy, congratulating him upon his succession to the premiership and pledging co-operation to better the relations between the United States and Italy.

Nitti Applies for Passport to U. S.

Rome, Nov. 3 (By the Associated Press).—Former Premier Francesco Nitti is reported to have made application for a passport in order to go to America.

Premier Mussolini has accepted the resignation of Signor Frascati, Ambassador to Germany. Count Sforza, Ambassador to Paris, is expected in Rome tomorrow. He was summoned by a telegram from Premier Mussolini.

London Hears Avezzano Will Be Envoy to U. S.

London, Nov. 3.—(By the Associated Press)—Baron Romano Avezzano has been appointed Italian Ambassador to the United States, which post he formerly held, to succeed Vittorio Nolandi Ricci, resigned, according to Rome advices received here.

Facisti Won't Last Long, Says Longuet

New York, Nov. 3 (By the Associated Press.)—The Fascisti movement, "a modern form of banditry" will hold its power in Italy only a short time, in the belief of Jean Longuet, famous Socialist leader of France, who arrived today on the Mauretania.

Longuet, a grandson of Karl Marx, will remain about two months in the United States, lecturing and studying the American Socialist movement and economic conditions.

Italian Communists by their appeal to violence, he said, had brought about a psychological condition that enabled the Fascisti to rise to power.

"The Fascisti movement could have lived in the middle ages," he said, "but it cannot exist now, for long, because it gives no answer to social problems."

Longuet was questioned by immigration officials for about twenty minutes on his general economic and political views, answering readily all the questions put to him.

At the end of the interview he signed a certificate stating that he intended to leave the United States within sixty days, and was permitted to enter the country.

U. S. Officers Attend Rome War Memorial

Rome, Nov. 3.—A solemn ceremony was held today in honor of the Italian Alpine soldiers who fell during the war. General Diaz, Minister of War, went to the cemetery, accompanied by his general staff. The foreign embassies were represented by their military attaches. The American officers present being Lieutenant Colonel Edward T. Connelly, Major James E. Chaney and John M. Eager.

General Diaz shook hands and conversed cordially with them, recalling his visit to America last year and the deep impression he received during the burial of the American unknown soldier.

Premier Mussolini, accompanied by Baron Russo, today visited the various ambassadors now in Rome, and announced his intention of calling on the others as soon as they return. The visits paid today were to the British, American, Japanese, Brazilian and German embassies.

Belgium Wants to Send Envoys to Lausanne

Brussels, Nov. 3. (By the Associated Press).—The Belgian government has sent notes to France, Great Britain and Italy expressing a desire to be represented at the Lausanne Conference on Near Eastern affairs during financial and economic discussions. The government insists it should be heard on modification of economic provisions in the Treaty of Sevres, which Belgium signed.

10 INJURED IN CAR CRASH IN BACK BAY

Ten persons were injured when an outbound Chestnut Hill trolley car rammed the rear of another outbound car at Boylston and Exeter streets, Back Bay.

Seven of the injured persons were taken to the City Hospital. The other three were treated by physicians and sent home. Those taken to the hospital:

Edna Smith.

Dix Bradford, twenty-seven years old, of No. 65 Hemenway street; Miss Edna Smith, twenty-eight years old, of No. 1249 Commonwealth avenue, Allston; Miss Mary Coleman, fifty years old, and Edward Coleman, twenty-five years old, both of No. 48 Creuit road, Newton; Freeburn Ackerly, forty years old, and Howard Ackerly, sixteen years old, both of No. 1 Smyrna street, Roxbury, and Miss Barbara Ingram, fifty-seven years old, of No. 103 Brookline avenue, Brookline.

Howard Ackerly.

These persons were taken home: Alice Murray, of No. 1963 Commonwealth avenue, Brighton; Velmar K. Nightingale of No. 8 Smyrna street, Roxbury, and Cornelius Condit of No. 45 Bower street, Brookline.

The tracks are being repaired at the spot where the accident occurred, and the police say one car was trying to switch over to a single-track line when the rear car bumped it.

Panes of glass in the cars were shattered, and the passengers who were not hurt were thrown into a temporary excited confusion. Traffic on Boylston street was delayed for nearly an hour.

Loses Rent Fight

MRS. ANNA S. STURGIS.

Mrs. Anna S. Sturgis has been ordered by the court to give up her apartment at the Reservoir Court apartments, Brighton. She failed to pay an increase in rent demanded by the owner, Charles Springs. Mrs. Sturgis told Judge Connolly that she had been singled out because she circulated a petition among the occupants of the building, protesting against an increase.

2 SISTERS BURNED SAVING BROTHER

Marie Free, seventeen years old, was badly burned about the arms and chest and her sister Margaret, fourteen, was burned about the arms while beating out flames enveloping the body of their ten-year-old brother Paul at their home in Charlestown.

The boy had thrown a flarelight which exploded on the kitchen stove of the Free home at No. 23 Sull van street, Charlestown. The blaze set fire to his clothing and the light clothing of the two girls caught fire as they attempted to save him.

All three are at Haymarket Relief Hospital. Paul and Margaret suffer slighter burns while the condition of the older sister is a serious one to burns to her chest and upper body.

GULF STREAM NOW WARMS ICE FIELDS

New Englanders who want to see this section of the country turned into a second Palm Beach are watching with interest the latest change in the warm waters of the famous Gulf Stream.

Instead of changing its course so that it would hug the shores of Massachusetts and other States in New England, a branch of the "stream" is wending its way in the direction of the Eastern Arctic Ocean, according to the statement given out by the Commerce Department.

SEALS FORCED AWAY

Seals, sea, white fish, both thriving in cold Arctic waters, have been forced to leave the Eastern Arctic section since the Gulf Stream sends its branch of warm, tropical waters in that direction.

Great fields of ice which for years covered the entire surface of the islands between Greeland and Norway, have disappeared. Even some of the best known glaciers have passed from existence owing to the heat accompanying the branch of the Gulf Stream.

MAY BRING RELIEF.

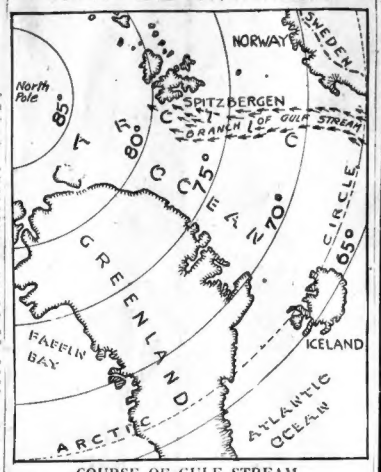
Engineers who claim that New England could be made a second Palm Beach by changing the course of the Gulf Stream so that it would come closer to our shores, declare that the new turn of affairs may give some relief from the intense cold of the New England Winters. The cold winds from the Arctic regions which reach New England will be tempered by the change in climate brought about in the Eastern Arctic by the newly discovered branch of the Gulf Stream.

PELLETIER TO HOLD RALLY IN REVERE

The "victory tour" of Joseph C. Pelletier, Democratic nominee for District Attorney of Suffolk County tonight takes him to Grand Army Hall, Revere; Williams Junior High School, Chelsea; Edward Wallace Associates, Hibernian Hall, Roxbury, and a series of social gatherings throughout Boston.

A "No" vote on Referendum No. 5, the so-called "District Attorney law," was urged by Mr. Pelletier at rallies in the interest of his election at Michael Angelo School, North End, at the Fardy, Western and Ward Clubs, and at a rally in Charlestown Ward Rooms.

WHY NEW ENGLAND MAY BE WARMER



COURSE OF GULF STREAM

Wending its way toward the Eastern Arctic Ocean, one branch of the well-known Gulf Stream has cleared away ice between Greenland and Norway and should temper the cold winds which reach New England.

MORGAN PARTNER LEFT SIX MILLION

New York, Nov. 2.—Temple Bowdoin, late member of J. P. Morgan & Company, left an estate of $6,187,709, according to the appraisal filed by the State Tax Commission. The entire residuary estate is left to Mr. Bowdoin's son in trust until he reaches thirty. He is now eight. Under the articles of the Morgan firm it was agreed that the good will of the firm name could not be used to determine the value of a deceased member's estate. Consequently J. P. Morgan was made a legatee for $286,365, the appraised value of the good will.

NEW YORK ZONING EXPLAINED BY PURDY

Reasons for the enactment of an ordinance for the "zoning" of cities were set forth by Lawson Purdy of New York in an address before the Chamber of Commerce at the Second Assembly luncheon at the Copley Plaza. The speaker gave some interesting statistics relative to buildings in New York.

Vogue of velvet overblouses

SWEEPING through the new mode, velvet, that gracious, formal fabric, has caught up the overblouse and carried it to new glories. For, made in brocaded velvet, or one of the new crushed velvets, an overblouse takes on the dignity of a costume.

It may appear in the daytime as a jaquette, made entirely of velveteen (like sketch 1); or it may ally itself with the filmiest of shadow laces (like sketch 2) to complete a dinner costume. (These are particularly lovely with the broadtail suits.)

Many other velvet overblouses in addition to those sketched (an achievement, we think, considering the fact that it was almost impossible to buy velvet, even by the yard, in the market last week).

(Filene's—mail or telephone orders filled—fifth floor)

Crushed velvet and shadow lace. Brown, navy, $13.75.

For instance, for the woman who is large below her waist, the Grace No. 6, a finely tailored garment of pink coutil which is unusually long, with extra fullness through the hips, yet cut to control the flesh perfectly. Low top, with elastic sections in front. Sizes 24 to 32. $5.

(Corset Shop—third floor)

The vogue of camel's hair

Camel's hair is used to denote the great family of near and distant relatives of the camel—all with the same general family characteristics.

NATURAL color

The best looking knickers that have been made so far are those of soft camel's hair shade in warm woolly material. $8.75.

And to wear with them, of course, the popular shaggy golf sweaters of camel's hair color. $10.50.

CHECKED

What a striking combination these two make! The wrap-around skirt in big block checks of brown and camel's hair color, and the sweater with finer checks (across the front) of the same colors. The skirt, $12.50; the sweater, $10.50. (Sketched).

(Filene's—mail or telephone orders filled—fourth and fifth floors)

PLAIDED

Adding interest to a vogue already interesting, a lovely plaid design buried on camel's hair and wool knickers, $13.75. Skirts from the same fabric, with unique leather trimmings, $13.75.

(Filene's—mail or telephone orders filled—fifth floor)

RUSSO RETURNS TO HIS 15-YEAR-OLD BRIDE

Freed from a charge of attempted assault, which was brought against him shortly after the police raided his Hyde Park "love nest" at the instigation of his wife's father, James Russo, 23 years old, is today back with his 15-year-old bride in their apartment.

Antony Ciampoli, of No. 487 Malden street, Revere, father of Russo's wife, Annie, declared, however, that he would today swear out a warrant for Russo's arrests on a charge of bigamy.

He declares that Russo has a wife and child in Italy and that they are now on the high seas, en route to this country.

Russo and Annie Ciampoli left Revere last Summer. They finally got to Providence, where they were married. Then they went to Hyde Park, where they "set up housekeeping" in a cozy apartment.

When the girl's father found out where they were he had them taken into custody by the police. They showed the marriage license, however, and were released. Then Russo was arrested charged with attacking Teresa Meo of No. 530 Malden street and Doris Tassanari of No. 7 Copeland street, Revere. It was alleged that he waylaid them while coming away from Angelo's house on Malden street.

The Chelsea Court found him not guilty and discharged him. It also found Annie not guilty of a charge of larceny of $234 from her uncle, Jemaro Ciampoli. Freed by the court the couple accordingly returned to Hyde Park as though nothing had happened.

Accused Eloper

TERESA MEO

Revere girl who accused James Russo of attack on her and another girl. Russo was declared not guilty in Chelsea court.

WEDDING DAY SERMON MAY JAR BRIDE

Doorn, Holland, Nov. 3.—Just before Wilhelm Hohenzollern, former German Emperor, slips the gold wedding ring upon the finger of his bride-to-be, Princess Hermine of Reuss, on Sunday, he will hear from the lips of the old German court chaplain some very pointed remarks regarding the late ex-Kaiserin.

The correspondent has seen the text of the marriage sermon, which was prepared in advance by Rev. Dr. Heinrich Vogel. Almost one-third of the clergyman's wedding talk will be devoted to the memory of Augusta Victoria—former Empress, who died in April, 1921.

The correspondent asked Dr. Vogel whether he did not believe that emphasis upon the memory of the late Kaiserin would jar upon Princess Hermine's feelings. He replied:

"That is all right. She will have to keep quiet and swallow it."

The clergyman paused for a moment and then added:

"Of course I will have to consult the Princess in advance. She probably will ask me to put in a few nice remarks about her dead husband to offset tributes to the former Kaiserin."

Bridget Convey, 102, Dead

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 3.—Mrs. Bridget Mary Convey, aged 102, who attracted considerable public attention some months ago by attending a prize fight in Sioux City, Iowa, died in a hospital of old age and complications resulting from a broken leg. She was born in Ireland.

TELEGRAPH BRIEFS

Dublin.—Supporters in the Dail of Eamon de Valera assail Irish hierarchy's defence of the Free State as unwarrantable and urge protest to the Pope.

London.—Population of Greater London given by census as 7,480,201, and in ten years males have decreased 54,762 and females increased 17,500.

Amsterdam.—Amerongen awaits coming of Princess Hermine, who is to be former Kaiser's bride, and she will be guest in Count Bentinck's castle.

Athens.—Million and half Christians are emigrating from Anatolia, apparently by order of Turkish Nationalist government.

Spokane.—Senator Borah at Spokane says that if Republican party does not work a change in economic conditions of the United States, that another party will.

New York.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who had been denied absentee voter's privilege by New York Board of Elections leaves Battle Creek Sanitarium for New York City.

New Orleans.—A fight for the $300,000 left by James D. Grant was begun when two women, alleging to be his widows, filed claims in City Court.

Panama.—All work was suspended in Panama and in the Canal Zone in celebration of Panama's independence day.

Richmond, Va.—Officials of the Jefferson National Memorial Association announced the association plans to buy "Monticello," home of Thomas Jefferson, from Jefferson Levy of New York, under a three weeks' option for $500,000.

New York.—The $100,000 dance hall and rink in Starlight Amusement Park, the Bronx, was destroyed by fire.

San Francisco.—J. P. Ellison, foreign exchange manager of a steamship concern, has bought 100,000,000 Russian Soviet rouble notes for $40 American gold.

NOTED DANCER'S SUIT AGAINST FILM TRIED

Paris, Nov. 3.—Hearings were opened in the action for damages begun by Cleo de Merode, world celebrity as a dancer nearly a generation ago, against the American firm owning the motion picture film which she succeeded recently in putting under sequestration, and against the French firm showing it. The amount claimed in the suit is 1,000,000 francs.

Cleo de Merode

F. A. STETSON, I. N. S. WRITER, IS DEAD

Washington, Nov. 3.—Frank A. Stetson, White House correspondent for International News Service for a number of years, died at his home in Mount Ranier, following a long illness. Stetson had a wide acquaintance among public men. He had served at the White House under both Wilson and Harding administrations. Last March, when he accompanied President Harding to Florida, he contracted a heavy cold. Complications set in and for the greater part of eight months he was confined to his bed.

TODAY

She built a fire on the floor of her kitchen, poured oil over the wood, poured oil over herself, lay down upon the funeral pyre, struck a match and burned herself to death.

You wonder how she could make up her mind to choose so horrible a death.

Yet in India millions of women have thus died, not only consenting but demanding death upon the funeral pyre beside the corpse of their dead husbands.

At first, the husband ordered his wife burned with him because he didn't want another man to get her. Then it became the fashion—proof of a noble mind to feel that surviving the burning of a husband's corpse was a disgrace. Millions of women were burned alive in India, while their relatives howled to drown the victim's cries and make the thing seem respectable.

Give the English government credit for stopping that brutality. A seventy-year-old Hindoo may still marry a fifteen-year-old wife, but he can't have her burned alive with his own corpse.

The Fascisti, middle-class revolutionists, who prove that people with property rule the earth in the long run, now rule in Italy. All of them, from the Prime Minister to the unselled clerk in government, work in black shirts. The idea probably was to frighten the extreme Radicals, Socialists, etc., as our Ku Klux friends frighten their victims with white masks and shirts. Or perhaps the Fascisti remembered the red shirts of Garibaldi's days, associated with the establishment of Italian unity.

Mussolini, head of the Fascisti, wore a frock coat when he called on the King, then went back to his black shirt. He makes everybody in government start working at eight o'clock—but that won't last.

Neither will the black shirts last. They will gradually be changed for white silk shirts, neatly pleated, then somebody else will be boss.

WIFE THROUGH WITH BANKER

nervous and suspicious of strangers, fearing them to be policemen.

... P. Croft, father of Mrs. Phelps, declared that he thought the missing pair were bound for the Pacific Coast by motor.

Ill from the shock, Mrs. Phelps is confined within doors. The tender solicitude of her old father for his daughter in her suffering is very touching. He sits in the living room of his cheerful home, holding one of his chubby grand-children and its struggling kitten in his arms, talking gently to the little woman.

DIVORCE ASKED.

Three days after his disappearance October 19, Mrs. Phelps filed suit for divorce on charges of infidelity. She will name Mrs. Wood as correspondent. Mr. Croft has filed a suit for $10,000 which he loaned his son-in-law when the two were financing a ranch in the western part of the State. All Phelps' property has been attached.

COUPLE IS HELD ON 3-OUNCE RUM CHARGE

Max Sugarman and his wife, Ida, pleaded not guilty before Commissioner Hayes today to a charge of illegal possession of three ounces of liquor. They were held in $500 for trial November 8. Sugarman is already under indictment for manufacturing liquor last July in Malden. Prohibition officers say that Mrs. Sugarman refused to admit them to their apartment at No. 1492 Washington street, and that after they had broken down the door, they found her pouring the liquor down the sink.

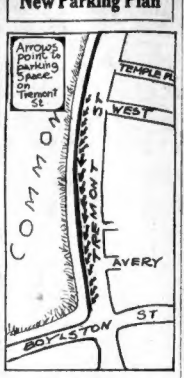
FOUND UNCONSCIOUS, RAZOR SLIPPED

Neighbors today found G. T. Holmes, seventy years old, of No. 468 Watertown street, Newton, lying on a chair in the dining room unconscious. There was a vicious gash on his cheek, apparently made by a razor. He had fainted from loss of blood. He was taken to the Newton Hospital, where as soon as he recovered consciousness, he said that "the razor slipped while he was shaving." The injury is not a grave one and he will recover.

FIND AGED WOMAN STRICKEN IN STREET

An unidentified woman about 70 years was found unconscious on the pavement today at Dudley and Greenville streets, Roxbury. At the City Hospital it was found she was suffering from ruptured varicose veins. Nearby the police found two bags containing old shoes. The woman is five feet two inches tall, weighs 125 pounds and wears black clothing.

New Parking Plan



WHERE TO LEAVE BUS. Arrows indicate new section of Tremont street set apart for the parking of cars in the evening.

NEW SECTION FOR PARKING AUTOS

Following a survey of the nighttime congestion in the theatre district along Tremont street, Captain Goodwin of the Lagrange street station announces that henceforth automobiles in that vicinity will be parked on the westerly side of Tremont, facing South, and not as heretofore, on the easterly side, between Boylston and West streets.

The new plan, in the opinion of Captain Goodwin, will relieve the congestion, will give easier access to the autos and will allow free passage to the Common, which previously was more or less blocked. The change will permit a quick clearance of the street way, and will favor pedestrians.

WINTER CAMPS FOR BOYS AT DARTMOUTH

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 3.—Plans for a series of Winter camps for boys from nearby New England cities were announced today by the Dartmouth College Christian Association. SULTANATE IS ABOLISHED BY KEMALISTS

Angora, Nov. 3 (By the Associated Press).—The Turkish Nationalist government at Angora has announced that it considers null and void all treaties and conventions concluded since March 16, 1920, by the Constantinople administration.

Constantinople, Nov. 3.—(By the Associated Press)—The Angora assembly last night decided unanimously that it is invested with sovereign rights and that the Turkish Nationalist government is the keystone of the caliphate. Today the newspapers carry these headlines:

"Ottoman empire collapsed, in its place there has arisen new national Turkish state—Sultanate abolished."

The decision of the assembly was announced by a salute of 101 guns. Immediately the soldiers and civilians began to celebrate the occasion to the blare of military bands and the bright flares of torch bearers.

Two resolutions were unanimously adopted by the assembly. The first said that by virtue of organic statute and representation sovereign rights had been vested in an indissoluble and inviolable manner in the moral person of the Angora assembly, which was the only emanation of the nation. The second resolution declared the caliphate was vested in the imperial family of the Osman dynasty, but that the Turkish government remains the keystone of the caliphate.

The selection of the Caliphs is to be made by the grand national assembly of Turkey, which will choose that member of the imperial family, the resolution provides, who is the best instructed, the best educated, the most honest and the wisest.

American Mail Saved From Fire in Smyrna

Washington, Nov. 3.—American mail in Smyrna was saved from the conflagration following the capture of the city by Turkish forces, according to information which has reached the Postoffice Department. The Greek authorities at Smyrna turned over to the American consul eight sacks of mail from the United States, four sacks of which contained registered mail.

The Turkish officials have informed the Postoffice Department that unregistered mail can now be sent to Smyrna via Constantinople.

DORCHESTER CHILD INJURED BY AUTO

John D'Angelo, ten-year-old son of Frank D'Angelo, No. 13 Grant street, Dorchester, was struck by a touring car, owned and operated by James A. Stevens of No. 29 Bryant avenue, East Milton, at Dorchester avenue and Grafton street, Dorchester.

John D'Angelo

The child was taken home and examined by Dr. John Jones of South Boston, who thought the boy's hip was injured.

POISONOUS LIQUOR KILLS CHELSEA MAN

The body of the man found dead in a hallway at No. 106 Ash street, Chelsea, was identified today as that of Timothy McDonald of No. 99 Spencer street, Chelsea. An autopsy disclosed the fact that McDonald died of poisonous hootch. He was fifty years old and leaves a wife and one son.

PRINCE THROWN FROM HORSE, INJURED

London, Nov. 3 (By International News Service).—Three of England's notables are under care of physicians today. The Prince of Wales suffered contusions of the ankle when thrown from a hunting horse and was obliged to cancel all his engagements. His foot was badly swollen. Ex-Premier Lloyd George, suffering from a cold, may be back in speaking form tomorrow. Former Colonial Secretary Winston Churchill is recovering from an operation for appendicitis.

An X-ray examination was made of the Prince's injured foot and showed that no bones were broken.

CHELSEA LAD FREED ON ABDUCTION CHARGE

Nicholas Longo, sixteen years old, was found not guilty in the Chelsea court of the abduction of thirteen-year-old Carmelo DiSisto, of No. 3 Pembroke street, and Edith Marciana, eleven years old, of No. 38 Williams street, both of Chelsea. Longo is alleged to have taken the girls to Providence, New York, and finally to Newark, where he was arrested. The court found that the two girls had accompanied Longo willingly.

WOMAN JUMPS FROM SECOND STORY IN FIRE

Central Falls, R. I., Nov. 3.—Mrs. Josephine Robitaille jumped from a window in the second story of the Eagle Hall Building in Broad street early today when smoke and fire prevented her escape by the stairway. Both of her ankles were sprained and her back was injured. The fire started in the cellar. The ground floor is occupied by stores. Damage is estimated at $10,000.

Third Generation is Using Syrup Pepsin

No other Laxative can replace Dr. Caldwell's in the confidence of those who use it

THERE are thousands of healthy, robust young men and women who have never in all their lives taken any other laxative for constipation than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Their parents were given it by their parents; the grandparents are using it today. It is the one laxative ideally suited to all the family, safe for the little ones, effective in grown-ups, so compounded that elderly people, who are constantly forced to take a laxative because the intestinal muscles are weakening, find increased dosage unnecessary. This wonderful constipation remedy has been used continuously for 30 years, and over 10 million bottles are now sold annually, the largest selling family laxative in the world! The cost averages but a cent a dose. Every druggist sells it, and under a guarantee to do as claimed or your money will be refunded.

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, 'Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?' I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 512 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

Mr. J. B. Belk of Shaw, Miss., relies on it entirely to keep his children in health, and Mrs. Catherine Connelly of Jersey City, N. J., declares that not only herself but all her neighbors and friends use it and tell others about it. There is scarcely a day that someone in a family does not need it for constipation, flatulency, auto-intoxication, biliousness, intestinal poisoning, headaches, colic and cramps, and to break up fevers and colds.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is scientifically-balanced compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and pleasant-tasting aromatics. The formula is on the package. As the popularity of this natural vegetable laxative increases, the public discards the harsher physics like calomel, coal-tar in candy form, salt waters and powders. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin empties the bowels more cleanly and without any danger.

ROOSEVELT TREE TORN UP IN ALABAMA

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 3.—The Roosevelt memorial tree, which has been the subject of a controversy since planted on the Alabama Capitol lawn by Montgomery Boy Scouts last Friday, has mysteriously disappeared and today officials still were without the identity of the miscreants.

A note discovered by the Capitol nightwatchman where the tree had stood read:

"Montgomery, Ala.—Get this Alabama:

"To all concerned:

"The Daughters of the Confederacy are our mothers (war mothers), and this is the South. There are no trees in honor of Southern gentlemen in the Capitol yard at Washington and our war mothers do not want this one here."

Only yesterday the controversy resulting from the Daughters of the Confederacy objecting to the trees remaining in the Capitol lawn was brought to a climax by the White House Association president naming a committee to co-operate with other Confederate organization committees in their efforts to have the memorial removed.

The association is a band of women organized for the purpose of preserving the original White House of the Confederacy, where Jefferson Davis resided when the capitol was located in Montgomery. The various organizations contended it was improper for the memorial to Roosevelt to stand on the Capitol grounds within earshot of the place where Davis became President of the Confederacy.

Washburn Admits He's a Dead One, but Speaks His Mind

Robert M. Washburn, ex-senator and leader of the Roosevelt club, speaking at a dinner of the Worcester Rotary Club, declared:

R. M. Washburn

That he had conveyed all his property to his wife six years ago, so he could talk freely and speak his mind.

That he "is dead, buried and cremated politically."

That the Legislature today is a sort of almshouse for men who have lost their money in business.

That voters should elect public servants with the same cold skill they would use in picking office managers, clerks and stenographers.

Referring to the Worcester Music Festival, "I can get away to Boston, so I am safe. I am, and you are, too, if you'll admit it, fond of 'Old Black Joe,' but you go to the music festival, sit on narrow seats, listen to a 72-page fugue and come out telling yourself you had a grand time."

SPRING SKIRTS NINE INCHES HIGH

New York, Nov. 3.—Long skirts have received another setback, if early orders for Spring, 1923, are any indication. A New York department store has placed orders for Spring suits with the skirts nine inches from the ground.

MOVIE WORLD NEWS AND COMMENT

SIDNEY OLCOTT has been engaged by Cosmopolitan Productions to direct Marion Davies in her next picture, a screen version of Rida Johnson Young's famous stage play, "Little Old New York." Work on the picture, the scenario of which is by Luther Reed, will begin about the middle of December.

The engagement of Olcott to direct Miss Davies comes as a result of the proposed world's tour by Robert G. Vignola, who directed Marion Davies in some of her biggest productions including "When Knighthood Was in Flower," now hailed as the screen hit of two continents. Vignola will start on his trip the latter part of November and will be gone about six months.

Meantime, Olcott is on his way to Europe, but will be back ready to start work on "Little Old New York" in about five weeks. Olcott is one of the pioneers in the directing game, his start in motion pictures going back to the old Kalem days.

"PALOMAR" READY SOON.

"THE PRIDE OF PALOMAR," picturized from Peter B. Kyne's story of the same name for Cosmopolitan Productions, is now undergoing the finishing touches preparatory to release in December. The picture, adapted for the screen by Grant Carpenter and John Lynch, was filmed in California under the direction of Frank Borzage, who directed Cosmopolitan's "Humoresque," amidst the very scenes where the author conceived and wrote the story on the picturesque ranch of Senor Cave Couts.

Woven around the romance of an ex-soldier and the pretty daughter of an Eastern capitalist who has annexed his ancestral estate, "The Pride of Palomar" offers a great deal in the line of thrills, including one of the most exciting horse race scenes ever filmed and a hand-to-hand encounter that just bristles with action. The fast moving plot carries with it the atmosphere of the old Spanish settlements in Southern California.

MISS BRADY IN ANIMAL ROLE.

ALICE BRADY'S next Paramount picture will be "The Leopardess," from an unpublished novel by Katherine Newlin Burt. Work is to be started immediately at the Paramount-Long Island Studio under the direction of Henry Kolker, who produced "Disraeli," starring George Arliss, and who has just completed "The Purple Highway," with Madge Kennedy.

Alice Brady

The story is one of the South Seas with torpedo, half-caste women and beach-combers. Miss Brady will be the half-caste girl whom the rich New York adventurer tries to tame as he tames a wild leopardess. The locale will be in the South Seas, New York and a country estate on the Hudson.

LOCATIONS IN NINE STATES.

PRODUCING Emerson Hough's story, "The Covered Wagon," as a motion picture promises to be one of the biggest undertakings of its kind yet attempted. There will be locations in nine States and an army of 2,000 persons will have to be transported across the Western plains in the same way that the original Forty-niners went West.

Many scenes will be made on a Nevada ranch of 200,000 acres, the largest herd of Buffalo in existence will be used, there will be 150 yoke of oxen, hundreds of mules, thousands of horses, a thousand Indians, and 500 prairie schooners which have been either built or purchased.

BEGINS RILEY POEM

CHARLES RAY is returning to first principles in his second production for United Artists, which is to follow his successful "A Tailor Made Man." The new role is like those he flashed into fame with. He finds it in "The Girl I Love," based on the poem of that title by James Whitcomb Riley. Joseph De Grasse will direct.

Charles Ray

The action of the piece takes place entirely in rural Indiana from 1849 to 1860. The events suggested by the verses form a drama of immense punch, albeit their basis is a pastoral poem. It is rich in romance, but the "course of true love" is accompanied by terrific incidents, and these take on great zest because it is tradition in James Whitcomb Riley's home State that this poem is the author's account of his own tragic experience in love.

Mrs. Freeman Allen an Ardent Charity Worker in Hub, Says Betty Alden

MRS. FREEMAN ALLEN, PROMINENT AT NORFOLK HUNT MEETS

Mrs. Freeman Allen of No. 200 Beacon street, is not only an enthusiastic horsewoman, but an energetic charity worker as well.

By BETTY ALDEN.

ONE of Boston's most noted equestriennes is Mrs. Freeman Allen, who is frequently lured to the Norfolk Hunt Club, where so many of the horse-loving contingent follow the hounds these clear Fall days.

Devoted to the saddle as she is, Mrs. Allen finds ample time to give of her time and interest to various worthy philanthropies. Among the latter is the Tide-Over League, of which she is one of the directors. Which reminds me that Mrs. Allen—whose Winter residence is at No. 200 Beacon street—is to sell evening dresses at the rummage sale which the league is holding on the 17th—two weeks from today—at Horticultural Hall. The Tide-Over League, by the way, is all that its name implies. Its work consists chiefly in tiding over convalescents until they regain their health and their former earning capacity.

A HOST of promient matrons are serving as patronesses for a concert to be given at Jordan Hall on Saturday evening, November 11, in aid of the New England Hospital for Women and Children. The artists for the occasion will be Miss Irma Seydel, violinist, assisted at the piano by Miss Wilhelmena Wagner.

Among the women who have lent their names to the affair are Mesdames Samuel J. Mixer, Curtis Guild, Benjamin P. Pitman, Roland G. Hopkins, Christopher R. Eliot, George E. Perkins, Clarence R. Edwards, David G. Roberton, Edward J. Holmes and William H. Lyon, as well as the Misses Olivia Y. Bowditch and Helen F. Kimball, and Dr. Emily S. Pope, Sara E. Palmer, Blanche A. Denig, Emma Call and Isabella Kerr.

MRS. LOUIS A. FROTHINGHAM has gone over to New York from her country place in North Easton and is stopping for a few days at the Ritz.

Speaking of Mrs. Frothingham, Wayside, her home at North Easton, is one of the many country places whose real front door doesn't face upon the street. So often the view is much nicer looking over the hills and fields out the "back way" than it is facing upon the street, a fact which many people have considered when having their homes built. Sometimes, of course, the "natives" don't like this at all, interpreting it as a slight upon them, when, as a matter of fact, such is not the case at all.

Mrs. Frothingham, formerly Miss Mary S. Ames, is of the distinguished clan of that name one of the brothers being Oliver Ames, who, like almost all the other Ameses, also has a country place at North Easton.

AS many of the girls who "came out" in the Winter of 1919-20 as could, made their way yesterday to the Junior League rooms on Boylston street, for it was yesterday that this gay Sewing Circle coterie had one of its jolly luncheons.

The 1919-20 group, by the way, was the last of the Sewing Circle. Now that the Junior League has come to stay, this ever-increasing organization has taken its place, and the Sewing Circle is a thing of the past. Except, of course, for those who belong to the earlier organization, and whose loyalty remains quite unshaken.

Some time ago blonde-haired May Bremer, younger daughter of the S. Parker Bremers, was elected president of the 1919-20 group, a group which has received no little notice because of the pulchritude and cleverness of so many of its members.

There is, for instance, Miss Elinor Jackson, a tall and rather Junoesque brunette, who was one of the bridesmaids at the marriage of Miss Miriam Fenno to John Simpkins about a fortnight ago; then there's dainty Louise Fessenden, who played the heroine's part in the last Vincent Club show; the former Elizabeth Cabot is another, but she's Mrs. Henry Holt, Jr., now, her marriage to the New Yorker taking place in September; then there's tall and dark-haired Rebekah Hobbs, who is working so busily just now to help make a success of the much paragraphed Atlantic City Boardwalk Exposition. These are only a few of the girls of this group, of course.

WOMEN RADIO LIVING WAGE APPEAL

By Cosmopolitan News Service.

Washington, Nov. 3.—The Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor is conducting an intensive campaign by radio to force the wages of women upward, recognizing the living wage standard as advocated by William Randolph Hearst.

"It is the size of your income which determines whether you can dress properly, whether you can keep in good health and whether you will have time and energy enough to take an intelligent interest in community affairs," declared a statement broadcasted.

"The size of the weekly pay envelope is responsible for a lot of things, but unfortunately it cannot always carry all of its responsibilities. This is true especially among women, for women work as a rule in low-priced occupations and the sums they earn are apt to be pitifully small.

"Think what low wages mean in lowered standards of health, of efficiency, of education, of family welfare. The effect of the health and happiness and general standards of low-paid women reaches out to the farthest limits of community life and to the life of the next generation, and the menace of low wages for them is a serious one, for we need good citizens, men and women.

"The public has been educated to appreciate the horrors of industrial exploitation of women. The next step is to educate it to appreciate the menace of wages which are too low to secure the necessities of life. Everyone can help with this education."

MAN'S HEAD LEFT IN WOODS BY STUDENT

New York, Nov. 3.—The prank of a medical student was the report made today by Medical Examiner Mord on the discovery of the head of an aged man in Staten Island woods near Travisville. The manner in which the eyes and other organs had been removed showed it to be the work of an expert, Dr. Mord asserted. There was evidence that the head had been preserved in alcohol for some time.

$20,000 FRAUD IN PROVIDENCE FOILED BY A CHANCE REMARK

Providence, Nov. 3.—J. Edward Foley of No. 126 Third street, Bangor, came to Providence after making the acquaintance of a man named Veno, who lives in Providence

His acquaintance with Veno, he claims, came near to costing him $20,000

Veno went to Bangor. It is said, and introduced himself at a club saying he had a large quantity of genuine whiskey which he would sell at a bargain price. Foley was interested, and offered to buy $5,000 worth and went to Providence with Veno on the next train.

Seated in a restaurant in Providence, Veno "found" a pocketbook under the table containing a bond worth $10,000 and the card of a man staying at the new Biltmore Hotel. Veno and Foley went to the hotel to return the pocketbook to its owner

"OWNER" GIVES TIP.

The owner, a man named George [illegible] said that he would like to do Veno a favor in return. Accordingly, he gave him several stock tips, and where he could place them. Veno went out to do so, Foley remaining with George

An hour or so later Veno came back, saying that he was unable to get a huge sum of money. He asked Foley to go to the brokerage house with him. Foley did so, and [illegible] accompanied a moment later by [illegible] apparently [illegible] Veno in place of $5,000 [illegible] winnings"

RETURNS FOR MONEY.

Because Veno had no deposit with the firm, however, they took the money from him and told him he could not have it until he deposited an equal amount with them. Veno suggested to Foley that they form a syndicate to raise the amount of the deposit, and then split the $5,000 equally. Foley agreed, and [illegible] back to Bangor to get his money.

He was to deposit $2,000 and Veno $3,000 as his share. He drew a cashier's check for that amount in Bangor and was about to go to Boston where he was to meet Veno when he met a friend who knew something about the stock market.

CHARGES ARBITRATION LAW IGNORED IN STRIKE

Fall River, Nov. 3.—John F. Fitzgerald's triumphal tour of the State reached new heights at enthusiastic rallies in New Bedford and this city, which brought to a climax a series of rousing outdoor rallies in Norfolk, Worcester and Bristol Counties.

Never has a candiate for Governor received such sincere and hearty receptions as were accorded Mr. Fitzgerald in these two industrial centres. Bands and red fire greeted him as he reached the city limits of each community, and as he stepped into each hall the audiences rose as one man and cheered for minutes.

Mr. Fitzgerald again asserted his stand on the Volstead act and again demands that Governor Cox come out as he is doing and make known to the electorate his stand on this question.

He charged Governor Cox with straddling on this issue. "My opponent is wet when he is with the wets and dry when he is with the drys," he told the audiences.

RAPS DRY LAW.

"Here in New Bedford and Fall River you see the fallacy of the present liquor laws," the gubernatorial aspirant continued. "Many of you are English and have been brought up to enjoy a glass of beer. Many of you are French and like wine and have been used to wine.

"You should still be allowed to have these comparatively harmless beverages.

"Statistics show that under present conditions the poor house and total dependency on relief societies awaits many of you. At least you ought to have some pleasure day by day and an opportunity to buy a bottle of light wine or beer with the meals. Your representatives in the legislature can get all the liquor they want. Why not you?"

HUGE MILL PROFITS

The Democratic candidate then went on to point out the huge profits that have been made in the textile industries of New Bedford and Fall River during the last decade.

"In Fall River in 1920," the former Boston mayor stated, "the textile mills paid their shareholders a 12 per cent cash dividend and stock dividend of 13 per cent and during the past six years the mills have averaged dividends of 20 per cent.

"The same is true in New Bedford. Last year some of the mill stockholders in that city made 40 per cent. The dividends over a period of years averaged 20 per cent. as in Fall River.

"The time must come," argued Mr. Fitzgerald, "when the manufacturer must recognize the workers and realize that the practice of putting into their own pockets such profits that should be shared with employes must cease.

WORKERS SHOULD SHARE.

"This must be brought to a realization that Massachusetts workers will no longer tolerate the burden put upon their stomachs and backs during hard times. The manufacturer must leave something in the treasury during prosperous times to take care of the rainy days."

The Fitzgerald "flying wedge" started its days activities in Randolph. The Boston campaigner did not join the party, however, until it reached East Walpole, due to the fact that he was attending a funeral.

He spoke in this town to a large audience of workers from the factories of Chas. Spencer Rand and here he likened his fight against Republican machine rule to the fight waged by Mr. Bird when he ran for Governor in 1912 on the Bull Moose ticket.

MR. BIRD GREETS HIM.

Mr. Bird was the first to congratulate Mr. Fitzgerald on his victory in Boston and Tuesday, Mr. Fitzgerald and his associates on the platform first spoke at exercises held at Bird rallies. Mr. Fitzgerald declared:

"The press reports of today show that the Armstrong Corporation has accepted the compromise offer presented by a designing shirt manufacturer which had been accepted by the mill workers, who are ready for a settlement.

"In our own State a strike or lockout has been in progress for months with Governor Cox administration sweating the minds of new boss made absolutely no effort to fix the responsibility for its continuance.

APPEALED TO COX.

"The mill workers had accepted a wage cut of 22½ per cent. Another cut of 10 per cent was ordered. They refused to accept it. The cost of living is higher in Massachusetts than any other place in the country was soaring sky high. Rent, food clothing and the prices of all necessities and commodities were ascending in the face of the wage slash, which proposed, within one year, to take away 42½ cents from every dollar earned by the workingmen and women.

"Mr. Thomas M. Mahon president of the United Textile Council, appealed to the Cox administration. He went before a committee of the Legislature and stated publicly, in plain frank words, that the mill workers were ready at any time to submit the matter to an impartial arbitration board and would accept the findings of that board, even if it ordered the workers to agree to the wage-slash of 20 per cent.

"The mill owners refused to arbitrate. The workers said, let the law take its course.' The law provides that when efforts to adjust a labor dispute are futile, the State shall investigate and publicly place the blame for the continuance of the strike upon the shoulders of the guilty, whether they be the workers or the mill owners.

"In all the months of that strike or lockout, the Cox administration has violated that provision of law. The workers have suffered and their families. The prestige of the Commonwealth has suffered.

"The record of the Republican Party clearly shows that if the workers had been at fault, the investigation would have proceeded without delay and the responsibility would have been charged against them. The pretentions of patriotism are cant and hypocrisy.

"The interests of the State are never served first when those interests run counter to the small but influential group which is all powerful in the councils of the Republican Party.

"The Democratic party is the party of progress. Nearly thirty years ago, as the Democratic leader in the Senate, I led the party in the fight against the fifty eight hour law. We then were fighting for workingmen's protection to give them legal protection to the men and women injured in industry.

"The national Child Labor law was passed by a Democratic Congress at the instance of a Democratic President. The Federal Reserve law, which did more to stabilize business than any piece of legislation ever written, was one of the many other achievements.

That public office was never for a minute considered a public trust by the schedules of the Fordney McCumber tariff bill, was asserted by William A. Gaston, Democratic nominee for United States senator, in his speeches here and at New Bedford.

TODAY'S SCHEDULE.

Fitzgerald, himself, will address seventeen rallies in today's whirlwind tour. His schedule for the day is as follows:

Ten a. m., Clinton opposite court house, 11, Lancaster post office, 12 noon, Leominster, Monument square 12:30 p. m., Fitchburg Depot square 1:30 Lunenburg, Town square 2:30 Townsend post office 2:30, Pepperell, Railroad square 3:00, Groton, Town square, 3:30 Shirley post office 4:00, Ayer, Depot square 4:30 Littleton, Town Common 5:00 Westford, post office 5:30 Chelmsford post office; 8:00, Billerica, Town square; 9:30, Tewksbury, Town square.

His big night rallies will be held tonight in Lowell and Lawrence.

"Last winter I resolved to provide in advance for the season's colds and coughs—and I did it. I spent less money and I had no doctor bills. I suffered no dread, no anxiety; I had no sleepless, worried vigils—watching my children through the dangerous periods of a bad cold. I want other mothers to know how I did it—my gratitude will then be theirs.

"I bought of my druggist a bott'e of Essence Mentho-Laxene and mixed it into a pint with homemade sugar syrup. It's no trouble—three minutes, a little sugar and hot water, that's all. Just follow plain easy directions. The very first dose brings relief and I have not had a serious cold or cough in my family since I adopted this pure good medicine. It contains no chloroform, or narcotics whatever. It's delicious and children don't fight it. I give it to my baby, my two older children and both my husband and self have found it supremely good in every way. It destroys the cold, stops the cough, corrects catarrhal trouble and prevents the dangerous after effects of a cold, because it is antiseptic, mildly laxative and tonic to the system.

SCREEN CENSOR IS OPPOSED IN BOTH PARTIES

Democratic sentiment throughout the State is overwhelmingly opposed to censorship of the movies. Out of thirty-one Democratic chairmen in cities and towns in the State only two are in favor of censorship. This is far from being the complete list, but the early returns from these places, in response to a request for their views, shows that the opposition to censorship is not confined to any one party.

Among the cities and towns which according to the Democratic leaders are against censorship are Springfield, Westfield, Malden, Haverhill, Lowell, New Bedford, Brockton, Framingham, Gloucester and Attleboro.

This is practically the same in the replies of Republican leaders throughout the State.

"Lowell will go three to one against Censorship," is the word from that city.

The Rev Dr Fred Winslow Adams of Trinity Methodist Church, Springfield, will appeal to the members of this congregation next Sunday, to vote against censorship. He is strongly against censorship, following several years of study of the film industry. Dr Adams was formerly head of the Federal Council of Churches in New York.

SOME LETTERS.

Editor Boston American:

In regard to the "Censorship Bill" I would like to ask each and every member of the Legislature who voted for it if they would sanction the censorship by an individual of their own daily wishes and needs.

Our being, both physical and mental, has various needs to strengthen and improve it, and because "one" does not like for his "own" physical being certain things, shall he deny such things to all others to whom such may be highly beneficial?

And so with our mental being. Let each and every individual determine for himself what he wishes to strengthen and improve and "please" his mind for his own benefit, and I'll guarantee that with few exceptions, I always to be expected, that nothing will be accepted which would deteriorate his mental condition.

Let the public and the free "press" be the censors and the result cannot but be more than satisfactory.

Make public any bad condition or fact, and it soon disappears by popular disapproval.

BY ALL MEANS "KILL" THE OFFENSIVE CENSORSHIP BILL BY MARKING YOUR BALLOT A DECIDED "NO."

Harry F Atwood says in "Back to the Republic": "The important function of individual rights is to stand guard day and night to prevent the government or any 'person' or 'group' of persons from trespassing upon the inherent rights guaranteed by the 'Constitution' to every individual under its 'protection.'"

PROTESTS "BUTCHERING."

Editor Boston American:

What we want is intelligent criticism of the photoplay and not a barbarous treatment for this new art. It is an art that promises to give such wonderful opportunities for the masses as no other form of entertainment has done before.

The photodrama educates as well as entertains. Millions are held spellbound while their heroes of the screen perform in action what very few could express in the spoken word.

Yet there are men who would deprive the public of an art which has just begun to show the wonderful effects of graphic education. Expert censorship is sometimes helpful and honest in its meaning but this half-baked, manifestly sentimental, perverted and ignorant butchering of films is disastrous to art in all its forms. It should be stopped before it has had a chance to strike its roots too deeply.

OUCH! BACKACHE! RUB LUMBAGO OR STIFFNESS AWAY

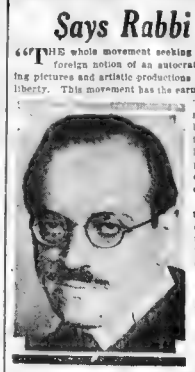
St. Jacobs Oil stops any pain, so when your back is sore and lame, or lumbago, sciatica or rheumatism has you stiffened up, don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest St. Jacobs Oil at any drug store, pour a little in your hand, and rub it right on your aching back; and by the time you count fifty the soreness and lameness is gone.

Don't stay crippled! This soothing, penetrating oil needs to be used only once. It takes the pain right out and ends the misery. It is magical, yet absolutely harmless, and doesn't burn the skin.

Nothing else stops lumbago, sciatica, backache or rheumatism so promptly. It never disappoints!

Movement Presumptuous, Says Rabbi Abrams

"THE whole movement seeking to introduce in America the foreign notion of an autocratic censorship of books, moving pictures and artistic productions is a threat to our intellectual liberty. This movement has the earmarks of insolence which goes with fanaticism. There is already a law against the publication of indecent productions and books. What right has any individual, self-appointed or appointed by another, to take upon himself to censor our taste?



"If the public wants something, has it not the machinery of legislation for the translation of its will into action? Has it not the police for the enforcement of its translated will?

"Then again the mischief goes further. A good book or moving picture or drama suppressed is a loss to all generations. They are the property of the ages. It is the taste of men and women, still unborn, that the censor would deckle. He is the censor par excellence of censors eternity itself.

"This movement is presumptuous, for it assumes that an individual censor and a small body of comrades-in-purity are the real educators of mankind. They would pass on Shakespeare, on the Bible, on every book and work of art that speaks courageously and honestly about the fundamental facts of life. That this presumption be properly rebuked it is necessary that all unite and protest against it." Statement of Rabbi Samuel J. Abrams of Temple Orabbi Shalom, Boston.

HINT AT GRAFT IN SCHEME FOR MOVIE CENSOR

Movie censorship is likened to the burning of the Salem witches in the old Puritanical days by indignant residents of Greater Boston.

Outright charges that this is but another hypocritical attempt at political graft are heard, as the Boston American seeks the opinions of workers in this part of the State.

Here is what a few of them say:

DECLARED IMPRACTICABLE.

Fred Visconti, No. 63 Bromley Park, Jamaica Plain: "Censorship is not practical. In theory, it might look some people. But in fact, it can be nothing more than a hypocritical effort to protect public morals. Since when have our law makers and our police departments proven that quite to those the public will without adding this immense salary and unpopular system of censorship?

Fred Visconti.

"Those who favor censorship are merely telling the people of Massachusetts that they are of such a low moral standard that they, the public, need a ruling hand."

Miss Helen F. Shea, No. 248 High land street, Roxbury: "I have been reading the amendment with reference to movie censorship and I must say that it is a complicated affair. I know there will be lots of people who will not be able to tell whether or not they are voting for or against censorship, but if they will all remember to mark their cross against 'No' they will be on the right path. If they would only make this referendum simple in reading they would not be confusing the voters into voting for censorship. Remember, everyone, to vote 'No.'

8 BOYS AND GIRLS RUN AWAY AND START TRIAL MARRIAGES

COUPLES ARRESTED IN HOTELS

(Copyright, 1922, by International News Service.)

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 3.—Mary Alice Morehouse, sixteen and pretty, one of the principals in the Lafayette "puppy love" trial marriage circle, which already has involved others, today told her own story of the affair.

Mary Alice has returned home to the farm; her "ideal romance" is shattered. "Her man" has been sent away.

Those already involved in the usual burst of romance include:

Levan Cunningham, 18, and Alice Morehouse 16, arrested in a hotel in Bloomington Ill.

Glen Cunningham, 17, brother of Levan, and May Zufall, 15, cousin of Alice Morehouse, arrested in St Louis.

Leonard Johnston, 16, arrested in Kansas City, Mo., and Mabel Cartright, 14, arrested in St. Louis with Glen Cunningham and May Zufall.

It was reported in Lafayette today that seven other couples believing Lafayette too "tame" were in the agreement to elope.

GIRL TELLS OF TRIP.

Mary Alice Morehouse, back home, her hair down and wearing a gingham apron, told the story of the triple romance in these words.

"Mary Frances Zufall, who is my cousin, and I chummed with Glen and Levan Cunningham, I with Levan and Mary Frances with Glen. We had decided to get married and so we started to Kansas City, where the boys had jobs waiting as clerks in a hotel. All four of us were to go, but Glen and Mary Frances backed out at the last minute. Tuesday afternoon about 3 o'clock Levan and I left for Bloomington. We thought we'd get married there and then go on to Kansas City.

"At first there was to be no one in the plan, but the four of us I don't know how Leonard Johnson and Mabel Cartwright joined in. We girls did not know either of them very well. But I guess Glen and Leonard were friends.

"Anyway Mary Frances and Glen evidently decided to risk it, after all. We did not expect to meet them in Bloomington at all, but we did rather think we'd see them in Kansas City."

Mary's mother interrupted.

"It must have been that Cunningham boy's influence. It was, wasn't it, Mary Alice?"

MOTHER BREAKS DOWN.

"He just carried me away. I have only known him about a month," Mary replied.

Mrs. Mary Morehouse sobbed hysterically. "I can't bear it. I can't bear it."

Mary Alice consoled her. She looks like a grown-up baby. "There, there, don't you fret, mother," she said.

"We agreed to marry and continue that we'd live together for six months and then get a divorce if we wanted to, and I have saved all the money I made at the hotel in Bloomington so I can go back. Levan went to Kansas City from Bloomington, and if he makes good—"

And Mary Alice's eyes took on a dreamy look — and she seemed strangely grown up.

The remark that the part in which the couples were to be held in "trial marriage" was not all some of the records in the case. If he could not pan out well they'd just go back to school.

When on Wednesday morning it was found that the runaways' mothers and fathers had made a frenzied search and finally communicated with the police.

Word was flashed to nearby towns to watch for the young couples. The arrests resulted.

Blames Her In-laws

MRS. F. F. FORD AND CHILD.

DIVORCED, MRS. FORD DENIES SHE WILL WED

"It's an old warning, but it's just as good today as it ever was: When you marry, keep away from your in-laws."

Mrs. Frances Fay Ford, who has been granted a decree of divorce from Charles Lester Ford, hotel owner of Hampton, N. H. and St Petersburg, Florida, makes this sage remark. In his defence, Ford, who was charged with cruel and abusive treatment, cited alleged photo "developing parties" of his pretty wife with MacDonald of Lowell, who was a guest at the Hampton Hotel in Florida.

The court found, however, that the "developing parties" were of a harmless nature, and Mrs. Ford was granted $2,400 alimony.

"Serious trouble began shortly after our marriage in 1919 when I was recently when we went to Local She lived from Hotel in Hampton with Mr. Ford's mother and father," she declared. "It is difficult enough to a young couple alone to adjust themselves to new conditions without the interference of the older family. Of course my husband's parents upheld him in anything he did.

"The last three years of my life have been a real nightmare. I am glad it is all over. I have no intention of ever see Mr. McDonald or anyone else. I am planning to go to work and make a home for myself and child. I may have her with me permanently some day."

Mrs. Ford's former mother of Mr. Ford has been given temporary [illegible] of Ford's baby daughter. Both parents have been granted permission to see the child and have it with them for reasonable periods.

DYNAMITE R. R. TRACKS FOR THE SIXTH TIME

Springfield Mo., Nov 3—Dynamiters blew up a portion of the track of the St. Louis San Francisco Western Division, one mile west of Marshfield. Deputy United States Marshals and railroad agents were rushed to the scene twenty-five miles from here. The break in the [illegible] automatic electric block signal and stopped an approaching train. This is the sixth dynamiting [illegible] region in the last month. Rewards for dynamitings now total $4,500.

40 YEARS IN JAIL FOR MAN WHO ABUSED GIRL

Muskegon, Mich., Nov. 3.—Forty years in the State pen was the punishment meted out here by Judge John Vandervert to Ray Eugene Wilson, thirty-one, self-confessed abductor of eleven-year-old Rosalie Shantz, the "Venus" of the Muskegon beach, who was found wandering in the woods of Northern Michigan after a three-day search.

Almost before court proceedings started they were completed and the criminal was being rushed to prison to atone for one of the most brutal attacks in Michigan's history.

Wilson, uncouth, unchaven, his clothes unpressed, a tall, angular man, with a florid face, stood before Judge Vandervert as sentence was pronounced. The judge with difficulty controlled himself as he announced his decision. The muscles of his face twitched. His hands were clasped tightly behind him.

Dancing Purists Rap Fashionable Hotel Affairs

More than 500 men and women attended the sessions of the Massachusetts Committee on Dancing in the main ballroom of the Copley-Plaza, at which a campaign against objectionable dancing was inaugurated.

City Censor John M. Casey, John H. Merrick, J. Heinemann, D. T. Montague and Mrs. Anna Steinhauer were among those who spoke. That the moral tone of dances at fashionable hotels is no better than that of those held in public halls was stressed. The committee made arrangements to meet frequently in the interests of the general improvement of the moral tone of dancing.

CAN'T DIVORCE CRAZY HUBBY, SAY BRITISH

By International News Service.

London, Nov. 3.—Although the Supreme Court of Massachusetts holds that mental [illegible] is sufficient ground for [illegible] the British House of Lords today refused to hold criminal lunacy as a just cause. The upper chamber of Parliament refused to grant a decree to the wife of Colonel Rutherford, who is serving a sentence as a criminal lunatic for murdering an army officer.

Mrs. Rutherford is fettered to a lunatic for life, but another woman's honor has been saved.

Mrs. Rutherford named a woman known as Amy Richardson as co-respondent. She was granted a decree nisi, but Miss Richardson appealed. Then the lunacy claim was put forward and the case went to the House of Lords.

The Lords held that Miss Richardson was guiltless, and that lunacy is no ground for divorce.

JOHN JACOB ASTOR TO TAKE HIS MILLIONS TO ENGLAND

GREAT WEALTH TO BE "EXPOSED" TO BRITISH TAXATION

London, Nov. 3.—The Astor wealth, made by the noted John Jacob Astor, will be "exposed" to taxation in England. The branch of the family which abandoned America finds it can't win in politics without bearing its share of the tax burden.

The remark of Major John Jacob Astor, who said, "I am transferring my wealth from America to this country," was treated as a big item of news in today's papers.

One headline read: "Astor millions coming here." By some it was assumed that the major, who is a brother of Viscount Astor, merely referred to his recent investment in Lord Northcliffe's share of the London Times' stock, which he and J. A. Walter purchased for more than $6,000,000, but others gave the remark a more sensational turn.

Major Astor, who is contesting for a seat from Dover in the coming elections, made the statement in replying to a heckler who inquired whether he was going to expose his own wealth to British taxation

New York Speculates on Plans of Astor

New York, Nov. 3—There was speculation in New York today over the reported announcement by Major John Jacob Astor that he was transferring his wealth from America to England. The realty and personal holdings of the late Baron (William Waldorf) Astor in the United States totalled more than $40,000,000, according to a referee's report filed last March in Supreme Court

Of this vast fortune, in which Major Astor participates with Viscount Astor, his elder brother $30,000,000 is represented in realty. The property was conveyed to the two sons in trust in 1919, and the income from that source is placed at $5,291,760. In addition Major Astor was given outright by his father Manhattan realty valued at more than $7,000,000

MAX SCHWARTZ

Lynn tailor threatened in message wrapped around stone thrown in at door of his shop. Rumors of a Junior Klan, organized among high school pupils, followed the act

JUNIOR K. K. K. AT LYNN HIGH RUMORED

When Max Schwartz, a tailor at No. 84 Lawton Avenue, Lynn, informed the police that he had been threatened by members of the Ku Klux Klan, rumors of a junior klan organized among high school students, broke out anew.

Schwartz showed the police a note ordering him to leave Lynn and go to Russia "at once." According to the man's story, he was sitting in his tailor shop when the message wrapped around a stone was thrown in at the door.

It read: "K. K. K. You miserable Jews, we have stood your kind long enough. You dirty foreigners. You Bolsheviks. Go back to Russia, where you belong. You are not wanted here."

SEEK EX-SOLDIER IN ATTACK ON OFFICER

Paris, Nov. 3.—The German police have announced that they are on the trail of an American ex-soldier named Frank Johnson suspected by them in connection with an attack on J. A. Sourwine, former major in the United States Army, according to the Mayence correspondent of Le Journal. Major Sourwine was stabbed and robbed on an express train between Coblenz and Frankfort. He is recovering from his injuries

SENATOR WALSH RAPS G.O.P. FOR BONUS VETO

Fall River, Nov. 3—A stirring speech indicting the "predatory interests of the Republican party for defeating President Harding's veto of the soldiers' bonus bill was delivered at [illegible] rally [illegible] at other mill cities by U. S. Senator David I. Walsh.

"The veto on the Ves...ning Adjusted Compensation measure is a typical illustration of the extent to which the predatory financial interests have dominated this administration," the Junior Senator declared

Senator Walsh

"At the direction of one of the leading Representatives of the ultra rich group, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, the chief owner of the world monopoly—the aluminum trust—every effort to adjust the veterans' compensation has been thwarted.

"Yet at his instance to the satisfaction of the international bankers a secret commission was organized to refund the enormous sums of money due the people of America to loans to foreign governments during the war. This same officer directed the program that led to the reduction of taxes upon corporation stocks and profiteers in the sum of $616,000,000 per year.

"This admin...tion could donate from the treasury ...ities stupendous sums of money to ...rporations for their losses upon war contracts yet it has not one cent to compensate our veterans for their economic losses."

If You're Looking for

Overcoats

Here's the Place to Come

Long coats and short coats, big coats and little coats, loose coats and fitted coats, light coats and dark coats, dress coats and sport coats, lined coats and plaid backs, single breasted and double breasted, with belts and without, in every worthy fabric the looms have produced and in every model that Fashion decrees and good taste approves.

And All GOOD Coats, too

It isn't merely the size and variety of the stock, but the quality also that makes this store the acknowledged headquarters for Overcoats. You'd think that among so many thousands of garments a few undesirables might have crept in. But not so. We can vouch for the character of every coat in the store. They all had to pass muster before being admitted and the poor ones had to go elsewhere.

And All Exceptional Values

On top of all other overcoat advantages this Live Store offers is that of better value. No other store is going to give you so much style, quality, good looks, warmth and satisfaction—so much downright overcoat goodness—per dollar of the price as we will.

So here are the most overcoats, the finest overcoats, the most attractive overcoats, the widest variety of overcoats and the best overcoat values, no matter what price you want to pay.

RAAB GIRL MAY TAKE PRESTON CASE TO ALLEN

Infant's Body Inside That of Dead Man

AUTOPSY AMAZES DOCTORS

Carried in Abdominal Cavity of Man, Aged 60, From Latter's Birth

Springfield, Nov. 3.—Medical circles here were astounded when it became known that the body of a male infant was found within the abdominal cavity of a Springfield man who died recently.

The discovery was made by Dr. Carl A Schillander, associate medical examiner, during the course of an autopsy he performed on the man's body

The child's body was well formed from the shoulders to the feet. The head was missing, however, and the arms were only rudimentary. The body was inclosed in a sort of sack, which was filled with a fatty fluid It is believed by medical men that this sack crowded the internal organs to such an extent that considerable distress was caused at times.

According to Dr. Schillander, however, the man in question died a natural death, and was normal in every other way. He was a married man and had several children, and was about sixty years old at the time of his death.

Dr. Schillander is inclined to believe that the embryonic body had existed within the man since his birth He said that it is probable that a freak of nature corrupted twin cells that would have been Siamese twins so that upon birth one cell was enclosed within the body of the other.

GRANDMOTHER STAYS FROM DIVORCE TRIAL

Neither Mrs. Parkhurst nor her mother, whom she accuses of being too friendly with her husband, appeared in the East Cambridge Divorce Court today when the case was called. The court room was crowded. Mrs. Cora J. Taylor, a ...enty-year-old great grandmother of Kendall avenue, Framingham, is named as co-respondent by her own daughter. The case was continued from last Friday to enable counsel for Mrs. Parkhurst to produce a new witness. Today it was ordered postponed until the next session of the divorce court

Surgeon Discovers Cure for Those Who Snore

Portland, Ore., Nov. 3—Score another triumph for surgery. It bids fair to remove a common complaint for divorce. It will make Pullman cars noiseless and make burglary a more hazardous occupation.

Dr. M. C. McCorkle, prominent Portland surgeon, claims he can cure snoring. Five minutes' activity with a surgeon's scalpel on the nasal openings, a quick tucking back of the tissue—and he guarantees to send the patient home for a snoreless night.

WOMAN DYING; TOOK WRONG MEDICINE

Mrs. Lena Allen, forty-five years old, of No 1107 Blue Hill avenue, Dorchester is believed to be dying at the City Hospital of poisoning after having drank one teaspoonful of belladonna at her home

According to Mrs. A. E. Weiner, a tenant of the apartment below that of Mrs Allen, the poisoning was the result of a blunder on the part of a wholesale drug concern in Boston which sent the wrong drug to the Allen home

Mrs. Allen

Mrs. Weiner said, had ordered a bottle of medicine from the drug company which had been prescribed for her by her physician. She sent a messenger for the medicine who soon returned with the package. She became suspicious of the appearance of the drug and called up her physician, who assured her that she need not fear taking the medicine

She drank a teaspoonful and immediately began to feel the effects, one staggered from her apartment into that of Mrs. Weiner and collapsed The latter immediately sent an emergency call for the police ambulance, which she said failed to appear Mrs Allen was finally removed to the City Hospital in the hospital ambulance by regular ambulance

The husband and three children are engaged in the wholesale shoe business on Lincoln street The couple have no children

ASKS RECEIVER FOR FOREST PRODUCTS CO.

BLOW HIT PONZI'S DEFENCE

Records of Former Trial Go in as Evidence; Railman Lost $1,700 by Scheme

In November, 1920, Ponzi pleaded guilty to using the mails to defraud.

The prosecution today attempted to introduce the records in the phase of the case, and also the complete records in the case of the United States vs. Charles Ponzi through Arthur M. Brown, deputy clerk of the United States District Court

Ponzi objected

There was a recess of nearly an hour, during which the court looked up the law on that point. Following the recess the court ruled that the records could be admitted as evidence.

This is the first serious point established against Ponzi since the trial began.

During the day Charles S Gallagher, a foreman of a roundhouse of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, demonstrated that he was probably the most gullible of all the victims of Ponzi. He testified that in June, 1920, John A Dondero, one of the Ponzi agents, convinced him that the purchase of some of the artistic lithographs vended by the Ponzi outfit was a good investment Gallagher bought for $1,750 worth of the coupons When the notes matured, and represented ten times his original investment, he was informed that the sum of $2,550 had been sent to the Ponzi office at School street.

Several hundred other customers who had been enmeshed in the high finance web were there ahead of him He claimed Mr. Dondero, he said, and demanded to know

Dondero, Gallagher testified, assured him everything was O. K. The mob, he said, was merely there to collect If he reinvested his $3,550, the witness said he was told, he could, in forty-five days more, collect $3 550 for his original investment of $1,700.

He fell for it.

All he ever collected was $100.

PARENTS ONCE IN SAME FIX AS WOODHOUSE

Burlington, Vt., Nov. 3—History has repeated itself in the marital experiences of the Woodhouses

Lorenzo Woodhouse and his wife, now being sued by the beautiful Mrs. Dorrit Van Deusen Stevens Woodhouse for a million dollars on alleged alienation of the affections of their son Douglas, were once precisely in the same position pictured by the young wife.

A generation back, the Boston American learned today the Woodhouse marriage was a union between the millionaire scion of Vermont aristocracy and penniless Mary Kennedy. They courted in secret, and in secret and when the marriage was made known the father of Lorenzo refused to welcome the young wife and was not reconciled until his dying day.

Almost detail for detail, this is the experience of Mrs. Dorrit Van Deusen Stevens Woodhouse, as related in her suit.

Hearing in the suit of Mrs. Woodhouse has been suspended until tomorrow while counsel argues on the admissability of a deposition from the young husband, Douglas Woodhouse. The young man is now in Reno.

His evidence was taken in the form of a 403-page deposition, which counsel for Mrs Dorrit Woodhouse sought to introduce as evidence. Defence counsel fought the move and arguments were heard in a private session, from which the public were excluded.

Bootleg Maker Killed by Gas as He Samples Booze

Lawrence, Nov 3—Death from bootlegging will probably be the verdict of Medical Examiner George W. Dow when he completes his examination of the body of William Goski

Goski, who is married and has four children, was found dead today in a hallway of a tenement house at No 528 South Union street. The police found a still going full blast in a flat on the ground floor rented by Goski.

Their theory is that Goski had sampled his own brew, become stupefied and had then become overcome by gas fumes escaping from the still

DRUG OFFICERS CAPTURE "MICHIE"

Hiding in doorways Officers Caverly, Conway and Monahan the headquarters "white squad," waited for a "meet" over in East Boston

Soon came a motley array of dopers, among them a "stiff" well stocked money This man bought 30 grains of morphine for $12 and, he misery, officers say, was later found in "Michie's" pocket

"Michie" is Michele De Spirito of No. 24 London street, East Boston. He is widely known among hopheads and dollars His nickname "Michie" police say, comes from his handling of narcotics

WIFE ENJOINED FROM SELLING SECURITIES

George W. Torrey of Rockland filed a bill in equity today against his wife, Mrs. Jennie F. Torrey asking the court to restrain her from disposing of certain stocks and bonds in a safe deposit box in the Rockland Trust Company.. The valuables are his, he alleges, although the box is held in his wife's name. A temporary restraining order was issued by Judge Sanderson.

RICH WIFE SEEKING DIVORCE

Heiress to $100,000 Estate Sues Husband for Cruelty; Asks Custody of Child

Mrs. Elizabeth Willis of Boston today filed suit for divorce in the Suffolk Superior Court

She asked that pendente lite be made by the court for a $50 automobile, stating the property of her husband, Guy C Willis, responsible for the payment of such alimony as the court may order. She also asks for the custody of her seven-year old daughter, Marjory Willis.

Mrs. Willis alleges cruel and abusive treatment

Two weeks ago Judge Wait ordered Willis to pay his wife $100 a month for the support of herself and their daughter, pending trial of his suit for divorce against her. In his suit he charged her with cruel and abusive treatment.

This order was handed out despite his claim that Mrs Willis is receiving two-thirds of the income of a $100 000 estate

In addition to her charges of cruelty, Mrs Willis, in her cross suit, alleges that her husband was guilty of infidelity with a woman known to her, but not mentioned in her papers She left the home of her husband in Allston some time ago.

Trip From Detroit to Meet Colleen Ends in Failure

Mrs. J. L. Gibney of Detroit left Boston for her home sick at heart after spending $100 in a futile trip East to meet an eighteen year old immigrant girl. Friends in Ireland had written that Mary Donohue, an Irish girl, was on her way to this country, and requested that she be met and cared for

After visiting pier after pier in New York Mrs. Gibney came to Boston, believing that the girl would arrive on the Pittsburgh, just docked here Disappointed again at failure of her colleen immigrant to arrive, Mrs. Gibney told officials at Commonwealth Pier that she would journey home again to Detroit

GETTIGAN CASE NOW IN HANDS OF THE JURY

The case of Thomas Gettigan Revere grocer, accused of the murder of Mrs. Lizzie Cook by criminal means, went to the jury today Judge Dolloff in charging the jury plainly stated that the death of Mrs Cook was criminal in its nature

The government has proved beyond a doubt that Mrs Cook died of arsenical poisoning by

He continued with an exhaustive discourse on the three degrees of murder and how the law specified in the case should decide each

Mrs Cook F Hitchcock was added to Assistant District Attorney Marcy's testimony of Gettigan that Mrs Richardson had not done anything in a financial way for her sister Mrs Cook

Mrs Richardson said that she had paid $75 $8 for a taxicab to bring Mrs. Cook from Revere a bill of $25 in the Massachusetts General Hospital for blood transfusion for Mrs Cook and seven bills of Emma L. Meader, an osteopathic physician, who attended Mrs Cook

Mrs Richardson said that the $50 cash charge was paid to William A Cantwell, brother of Mrs. Gettigan who owns a car

Closing arguments were made by Roscoe Walsworth for Gettigan and Assistant District Attorney Caro for the government

APATHY OF COUNTY OFFICERS HINTED

By BERT FORD.

Counsel for Mrs. Mary O'Leary Raab of Melrose today intimated that if District Attorney Endicott P. Saltonstall of Middlesex County declines to reopen the Preston murder case they may appeal to Attorney-General J. Weston Allen, as chief prosecutor for the Commonwealth, to take action.

Already relatives and friends of the O'Learys here are complaining of indifference and apathy on the part of certain public officials.

After Attorneys George Stanley Hayes and William H Powers, Jr., had submitted to Assistant District Attorney Charles W Hood new evidence relative to the slaying of Catherine Preston of Wakefield, Mr. Hood was assured if the matter would be presented to the Middlesex Grand Jury, which convenes on Monday

HINTS AT NOTHING NEW.

"I don't know that it embodies anything new," replied Mr. Hood.

Q. Was certain information submitted to your office by counsel for Mrs. Raab? A. It was

Q Will it be called to the attention of the Grand Jury? A. That is a matter which Mr. Saltonstall will pass to decide. I shall turn over the data to him He is personally handling the affair I don't know anything about it"

The information submitted by Mrs Raab's lawyers consisted of the names and addresses of new witnesses and affidavits to support the information They refuse to be so but the fact that it is being guarded with the utmost of secrecy.

Asked what course he and his associates would pursue in the event that District Attorney Saltonstall refuses to act Mr Harvey said,

"We have not yet decided. Developments will determine our action. At present we are simply marking time We have made a formal request on the district attorney for Middlesex County to renew at once investigation of the murder of Policeman Preston with a view to solving the mystery if possible

"What we are most interested in is solution of the murder of a police officer, killed in the performance of his duty. The other case we consider secondary "

Mrs. Raab, who was in conference with Messrs. Harvey and Powers, when Mr. Harvey made this statement, took occasion to deny a report that a "society woman had confessed to her that she had murdered Jim Preston "

"I never made any such claim," said Mrs Raab. "That is untrue. There is no authority for such an assertion "

SEEK TOURING CAR.

Search for the touring car which carried the two Somerville couples to the home of Mrs Kate Dow in Melrose a week ago Saturday night when Mrs. Mary O'Leary Raab was assaulted, narrowed down today to a certain coterie of young married people in Somerville whose fondness for gay times is well known to the police and neighbors

The car in question is reported to be painted dark green or black. There are five numbers on the registration plate, two of which are known to counsel for Mrs. Raab, "John ——" the husband of the mysterious Mary, who charged Mrs. Raab with knowing too much about the murder of Patrolman James Arthur Preston of Wakefield, is thought to be the owner and driver of the automobile.

FEW TOUGH GRID GAMES TOMORROW

BROWN AGAINST YALE SEEMS BIGGEST

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Although they didn't card many bang-up football contests for tomorrow afternoon, the few that were arranged for that day and date are tough ones for the score-guessers.

You mull it over for a while, taking a slant at this angle and at that, and you conclude the Bruins should take the Bulldogs for a row of Czecho-Slovakian hen coops.

Then some doubt arises as to the not-yet-revealed Brown attack; one thing leads to another, as Nero informed his music teacher, and the first thing you know Yale looks out in front. So you hem and haw a bit more and wind up with the very positive and always correct estimate that one team may win the game, and so, also, the other may, and you leave it lay that way, unconvinced and unconvincing.

Lafayette-Ward Game Will Be Corker

Then maybe you hop to the Lafayette-Washington and Jefferson affair at the Polo Grounds.

Lafayette should win, of course. But, Whoa! How about the tough game Lafayette ran into last week while W. & J. was taking things easy, with its coach and several players sizing up Lafayette's stuff at Braves Field.

Then, perhaps, you move to the Syracuse-Nebraska set-to at Syracuse only to run into another snag. So, too, when you prospect on the Georgetown-Holy Cross; Colgate-Lehigh; Springfield-Fordham and Middlebury-Tufts clashes; while there are sufficient symptoms of the upset epidemic in the Cornell-Columbia, and in numerous other battles to make you rather fidgety in picking the winner.

Like Lafayette to Win From Generals.

However, notwithstanding the Lafayette-Washington and Jefferson circumstance of last week we like Lafayette in that game, and we bravely name Nebraska, Georgetown, Colgate, Springfield, Middlebury, Wesleyan and Cornell as the likely winners of the other tight tussles on Saturday's calendar, while we string along with the odds on teams in the remaining games on the Eastern schedule.

We know W. & J. is waiting for Lafayette. The Presidents thought they were sure enough champions last year and didn't like it a bit when the Lafayette folks said "Pooh, pooh, how about us?"

But, whereas, W. & J. lost Stein who was about 60 per cent. of their defence and a large chunk of their offence, the Easterners retained Schwab, Delbie, Gazella, Brunner, O'Connell and several others, and they're working together in still better form than was the case last year, and while W. & J. may take them, it could only be through a Lafayette slump. W. & J. already has been held to a tie by West Virginia, and from reports was lucky to get off that easily.

Nebraska a Real Team, But So Is Syracuse.

In naming Nebraska the probable winner of the Syracuse game, we do so with a bit of fear and trembling. That the Westerners have a real team goes without debate, but so has Syracuse, but whereas Nebraska has been a team that has produced victories, Syracuse has yet to find itself, particularly when on the attack, for the Salt City outfit has been held scoreless by Brown and Penn State.

The Orangos have size and individual skill and they have been handling very effectively about everything their opponents have sent at them, but when they themselves possess the ball they're continually getting off on the wrong foot. Perhaps they may find themselves in Saturday's game and perhaps Nebraska will lose heart when it goes up against the Syracuse defence, but on form, Nebraska is the pick.

We like Georgetown in the Holy Cross game at Washington for the sole reason it is the home team. On paper this pair of Jesuit institutions appear about equal, and it has been our observation that when teams are at a stand-off the home team is the fellar that gets the breaks one way or another, as was the case at the Stadium last Saturday.

Cornell Should Win, But Columbia May Upset Dope.

If you named any but Cornell, the favorite, in the Columbia game at Ithaca, Saturday, well-intentioned friends would recommend for you a short session at the Psychopathic Hospital, and yet if an upset is to come this week end, Ithaca may furnish the setting.

The Dobie scoring machine, against teams like St. Bonaventure, Niagara and New Hampshire State can roll up points, but when it struck Colgate its works were considerably gummed. One earned touchdown and one lucky counter was all Cornell could make against Colgate, and had Colgate shown an attack of any consequence Cornell might have been on the losing instead of the winning end of the game.

The future of "Buck" O'Neil the Columbia coach, more or less hinges on Columbia's showing in the game with Cornell. "Buck" was given a rather fat salary and a three-year contract to put Columbia on the football map, and as this is the third year of that contract and "Buck" has yet to put Columbia on the map, we have a powerful hunch "Buck" will be doing his darndest to do so tomorrow.

Buck Has Raw Material, But Suffers for Background.

"Buck" has the raw material, but suffers, of course, because of the leak of football background at Columbia. In Captain Koppisch and Ben Roderick he possesses two of the finest halfbacks in the East, and he has weight, strength, skill and experience in the remaining positions on the team. But the boys haven't been whacking away in the proper cadence as yet, and they slid into that bad habit of underestimating opponents in the N. Y. U. and the Williams games.

If they're ever to get going tomorrow's the day, and they may prove good enough to turn back Dodie's offence and take advantage of Dobie's more or less slipshod defence.

Boston, Crimson and Eagle Should Win Their Games.

The Greater Boston games tomorrow—Harvard-Florida and Boston College-Villanova—should find the home teams triumphant. Harvard is so confident of taming the alligators that it is to start its second team in the fray and permit many of its first assortment to journey to Princeton or New Haven to watch its "big three" rivals at work.

Boston College, with several of its regulars out of it on account of ills or injuries, may be forced to play its best to overcome Villanova. Holy Cross attempted to lick the latter, using only substitutes, but was forced to send its regulars into the fray and then had a margin of but one touchdown over the visitors.

Maine and Little Three Series Also Under Way.

The "little three" series involving Wesleyan, Williams and Amherst, gets under way Saturday in the meeting of Wesleyan and Amherst at Middletown, while the State of Maine championship, involving Maine, Bowdoin, Bates and Colby, is brought to a close with the Maine-Bowdoin game at Bowdoin. The latter team, which ruled the favorite at the start of the series, has been tied and trimmed in the series thus far, and Maine has the title clinched no matter what be tomorrow's outcome.

DARTMOUTH TO PLAY BEST ELEVEN

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 3.—Dartmouth got its last hard workout before the game with Boston University, when Coach Cannell sent the varsity against the scrubs in the third scrimmage the regulars have had this week. The varsity once again failed to show impressively on the offence in the half-hour tussle, scoring only three times against Billy Streng's worthies.

Dartmouth will start its regular lineup against B. U., regardless of the fact that the high point of the Green season, the game with Cornell on the Polo Grounds, comes the following week-end.

PEABODY WILL STAGE NORTH VS. SOUTH FOOTBALL BATTLE

SOUTH CAROLINA TEAM TO PLAY TANNERS

By FRED C. LANE.

The biggest reception ever accorded a visiting school football team awaits Charleston High of South Carolina when they come to Peabody on Saturday to play the Tanners in the first intersectional battle ever staged in that city.

Led by William Carlin, chairman of the reception committee, several hundred scholars will greet the "champions of the South." A parade formed at the station will march to City Hall.

Mayor Shea made the trip South with the Peabody team when they played in Dixie land last season and knows many of the Southern players personally. A luncheon will be served at noon after which the team will adjourn to the new athletic field for a practice session.

The Southern champions were victorious over Peabody last season but Coach Brawley hopes to turn the tables.

Edna, Heuse of the visitors, has the same team at hand that defeated the Peabody eleven last year.

According to Coach Brawley, Peabody's power was in better shape to meet the foe than for the contest with Lawrence the fullback, and Steve Harris and Jack Boyle lines have strengthened the defence a marked degree.

The new stands that surround the new field will be taxed to their capacity.

Gloucester Coach Calls Off Chelsea Game

Because of the numerous injuries sustained by the squad in the Lynn English-Lynn game last week, Jack Burke of Gloucester was forced to call off his scheduled game with Chelsea on Saturday at Alter Field, Chelsea.

Salem High will be without the services of Captain Charles Chaurette for the season. The veteran pigskin chaser has passed the age limit. His loss will be severely felt for the balance of the line plunging rested on his shoulders.

Brookline's Defence Causes Worry.

The fine defensive play of Brookline High has caused more than one coach in the Suburban League to burn the midnight oil trying to devise some means to overcome it. Had the team a little more initiative on the offence they would be up with the leaders.

* * *

Captain Sol Harris of the Lynn English eleven will not play for the team on Saturday. An injured shoulder will cause his absence.

Mounted Cops in a Cup Race on Nov. 10

Mounted policemen chasing one another, will be a feature at the race meeting of the Millwood Hunt at the Millwood Farm, Framingham Centre on November 10.

Mounted policemen of the Massachusetts State Police, or of any city in Massachusetts, will race for the Board of Trade cup, a trophy presented by the Framingham Board of Trade. The headquarters of the Massachusetts State Constabulary are near Framingham, so that a large entry list is expected.

IRA THOMAS NOW TEXAS MOGUL

Ira Thomas.

Shreveport, La., Nov. 3—The Shreveport Baseball Association today completed arrangements for the sale of the Local Texas League baseball team to Ira Thomas, former Philadelphia Athletic catcher and a veteran of local business men. The purchase price is $7,000 and includes the grounds. Thomas will manage the team.

Since retiring from active playing Thomas has been coaching college teams in New England.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Pittsfield—Frankie Quill knocked out "Lefty" Major, six rounds.

JONES TO RETIRE, SAYS RUMOR

New York, Nov. 3—It was reported from reliable sources in New Haven following a decision of the Yale athletic committee against the Army that Tad Jones, head coach, had definitely decided to retire as mentor of Yale's football destinies after the season.

Tad Jones.

James was brought to Yale in 1916 from Exeter Academy where his coaching attracted the attention of the New Haven school. He signed up a one year contract. The Yale team defeated Princeton and Harvard that fall and Jones was hailed as the miracle man to lead Yale out of the wilderness.

Jones was in the shipbuilding business on the Pacific coast from 1918 to 1919 and in 1920 was brought back to Yale on a five year contract at a salary of $12,000 per year. This made him the highest paid football coach in the country.

HOLY CROSS TEAM SEE THE NAVY PLAY

Worcester, Nov. 3. The Purple contingent consisting of twenty players left Worcester at 8.45 o'clock and arrived in Washington this morning. The players heard mass and then held practice at the Washington baseball park.

It is probable that Glennon will do most of the Purple's flinging. His passes in practice were perfect and accurate.

NORMAN SHAY TO PLAY HERE

At a meeting of the United States Amateur Hockey Association Frank Sullivan, manager of the Westminsters of New Haven, entered a strong protest against Norman Shay playing with the Victoria Hockey Club of this city.

Frank Sullivan.

Although Sullivan's protest was overruled, he claims that he was within his rights as the game in Boston rather than go to New Haven with his former team.

FLORIDA ELEVEN EXPECTS TO GIVE HARVARD REAL TUSSLE

VISITORS HEAVY AND WELL COACHED

Florida's football team a real weighty aggregation, arrived in Boston today, ready for their practice workout at the Stadium this afternoon. The players were to run through signals, and get as much dope as possible regard ng the wind currents and breezes tha. play over and through the big Harvard horseshoe.

The invading warriors have plenty of confidence in themselves, and although they don't predict any victory in the morrow's game, they assert that the Crimson will know it has been in a real football game by the time the sun goes down in the westering haze as the authors put it.

The Southerners have a big team, one that scales about evenly with any of the big Northern teams. The Line weighs 200 as an average, and the backs are sufficiently hefty to give any kind of a line bother.

The team, which started the season poorly, has developed rapidly, and, according to the coaches, is now fit to go through an entire game at full speed. Enough cool weather trickled down Florida way to give the coaches a chance to drive the boys. The benefits of this showed quickly, when the team easily won three pastimes, after having been beaten in the opener.

Plenty of the very best football instruction has been tossed at the visiting athletes, who have as coaches Kline, the former Illinois star; Jack Acosta of Yale and Van Fleet of the Army. All the coaches are confident that their charges will not be worried by the Stadium surroundings, and will play a lot of real football.

Though nothing has been divulged regarding the Florida attack the Harvard authorities are prepared to meet a lot of forward passing and other brands of trick football. Reports from the South indicate that the big eleven has a lot of stuff in it scheme of things.

ALEXANDER GOES BIG ON ALLEYS

This season excitement reigns on all the local bowling alleys around the Hub. At the Huntington Bowling Alleys will be seen many teams that section clamoring for action, and among them are the ladies and gentlemen bowling teams of the John Hancock Life Insurance Company, Boston Trade School, Boston Young Women's Christian Union Trade Leagues and the Y. P. Club League.

It is a gold ring with a small black figure of the negro boxer inlaid.

INTERCITY BOUTS INTEREST FANS

The Intercity amateur show which will take place at the Boston Arena next Wednesday between New York and Boston fans is creating a world of interest if the advance sale is a criterion.

Bill Cuddy.

President Cuddy announces that seldom has there been so much interest manifested in an intercity amateur tournament as in this one and he predicts that this show will be the best ever staged in Boston.

The following classes will be represented: 126, 135, 147 and 160 pounds. Two men in each class will represent both Boston and New York. There will also be two open classes in the 112 and 118, which will make this show one of the best held in Boston.

CAMBRIDGE HAS RED-HOT GAME

Cambridge football fans will have another big battle to look over Sunday afternoon at Russell Field, North Cambridge, when the Cambridge Latin team will take on the Mt. Auburn strong of Watertown.

Eddie Regan.

Hank Hanley, formerly of Lowell Textile, and Dave Bagwell, formerly of Amherst, have been playing stellar football for the Mt. Auburns. The Latin school boys will be out in full force to root for their favorites.

Louis Smith.

Louis Regan will be seen in the backfield for the Mt. Auburns, while Quarterback Louis Regan, who has a dislocated shoulder, Billy Robinson, a former Rindge Tech halfback, will chatter the pigskin here. Smith will take Smith's place.

Arlington Plays Today

LITTLE PADDY OWENS LOOKING FOR BOTHER

Tho injury Paddy Owens received in falling out of the ring in his contest with Jo. Miller of California at the Boston Arena last Spring has been pronounced O. K. by his physicians.

He has been training for the past couple of weeks as he feels he will have no trouble in disposing of all the local bantams and would like nothing better than to start with the bantamweight champion, Abe Friedman.

PARKER TO FIGHT YOUNG TANSEY

Charley Parker.

Sailor Byron will not be lightweight champion of New England for a great length of time, according to Charley Parker of the South End. Parker has won his last five starts and says that all he needs to make him champion is a tussle with Byron.

The South End knock kid will try to continue his victory habits when he collides with Young Tansey, of Roxbury, in a ten round bout at the Armory Club's show at the Grand Opera House next Tuesday night.

TUFTS READY FOR GAME IN VERMONT

Coach Eddie Casey and the Tufts grid men left the North Station at 8:30 this morning en route for Middlebury, Vt., where they will tackle Dave Morey's eleven tomorrow. A stop will probably be made at Lebanon, so that the squad can get a work out on the ball grounds there.

This is the first time that Tufts and Middlebury have met on the gridiron and in view of the showing the latter made against Harvard and Norwich Coach Casey anticipates a hard battle. The defeat by Wesleyan has put the team on edge and resulted in several hitherto unnoticed weak spots being ironed out.

FITCHBURG WORKS OUT FOR CONTEST

Chicago, Nov. 3—The Fitchburg, Mass., High school football team, standard bearers for the East, tomorrow's intersectional game with Provino High at Maywood, took its final workout on Stagg field behind closed gates today.

The Fitchburg lads, accompanied by John Fallows, Mayor of the Massachusetts city, arrived last night and were hailed to bed.

Paul Hodge, captain of the Easterners, said his team is determined to avenge last year's 13 to 7 defeat by Provino at Fitchburg.

B. C. LOSES FULLBACK DOWD FOR SEASON

Fortune seems to be having a "put and take" game with the Boston College outfield. First, Kelleher, the Eagle captain, was put out of the game by an injury received in the Detroit scrimmage, and he will not be back before the Georgetown contest. Last Saturday "Chuck" Darling, quarterback, was retired to St. Elizabeth's Hospital with tonsilitis. Now, George Dowd, the best of the fullback candidates, is out, perhaps for the season, with badly bruised shoulders.

Dowd was to displace Wilson, who filled in for Kelleher. His playing in the Detroit and Lafayette games showed him to be a brilliant line plunger, and Coach Cavanaugh planned to reward his work by giving him a chance on the first team.

All week Dowd played in a way that pleased the coach, and no one feared that he would not make the best of his opportunity against Villanova. The Eagle squad had a hard scrimmage session, in which Dowd's shoulders were badly bruised. His shoulders were X-rayed to determine just how bad the injury is.

Dowd will not start for Boston on Saturday, and there is little hope he will now have to wait until next season for the long awaited opportunity. This is a hard blow to him, as he has worked on the other hand, Fortune has faithfully and consistently for two not been too unkind. Yesterday, another chance. It looks as if Darling reported for practice.

CHAMPION WALKER NOW TARGET FOR MANY CHALLENGES

ELIMINATION SERIES PLANNED BY ARENA

By JACK CONWAY.

Smiling Mickey Walker, new welterweight champion, had barely time in which to purchase his fiancee, Miss Maud Kelly, a victory gift before he was deluged with challenges from ambitious young men who would wrest from him his newly won laurels.

Everybody wants to take a shot at Jack Bulger's stout-hearted warrior. The popular demand for a tussle with Walker will give Johnny Wilson a chance to get his breath. Before the Walker triumph the most pleasing of ring sports was tossing Jaws of Charlestown around.

Who will get the first chance at Walker's title? Jack Bulger, as capable a manager as there is in the boxing game, will answer that question.

As for logical contenders, we have Eddie Shevlin, Dave Shade, Paul Doyle, George Ward, Jack Perry and one or two more.

Shevlin has decisions over Shade and Ward and so should appear to be in a better position than some of his rivals.

Mickey Would Have Been Glad to Fight Eddie

"Mickey wants to battle Shevlin," said Bulger. "A Shevlin-Walker bout should be about the biggest kind of a card imaginable."

But Walker was not the champion at that time. He had plenty of confidence in his ability to win, but he hadn't grabbed the title.

Walker has been eager to get a Shevlin bout for months. But now that he is boss of his ring division, Mickey may decide to let Shevlin remain out in the cold.

Dave Shade would have an even chance of defeating Walker. Shade has boxing ability, class and speed. He held Britton even a year ago and wasn't given a return bout as the dethroned champion did not believe he could defeat Shade.

For a Time It Looked Good for Shevlin

For a time it looked as though Britton would meet Shevlin. Then Eddie defeated Shade and all chance of the Roxbury man getting a bout with the champion ended.

Paul Doyle, who can make 142 pounds, has been doing some sensational fighting in New York and Pennsylvania rings. He has been knocking out most of his opponents in quick style. Doyle would be a tremendous card with Walker in New York, judging from the ovation Doyle received when introduced to the fans at Madison Square Garden the other night.

Perry Also Has Hopes of Landing a Tussle

The Arena A. C. will make an effort to determine who, of the welterweight contenderas is best fitted to battle Walker.

Dave Shade and Jack Perry will start festivities when they meet in a ten-round bout at the Boston Arena next Monday night. When these men met recently at Milwaukee, Perry was credited with a newspaper decision. He claims he will get a referee's verdict Monday night. We shall see.

Eddie Shevlin has agreed to quarrel with the winner. The victor of that match will oppose George Ward or Paul Doyle. Inside of a couple of months it will be possible to say who is the class of the contenders.

Dave Shade First to Hurl Defi at Walker

New York, Nov. 8—Dave Shade, California welterweight, is the first boxer to challenge Mickey Walker, the new champion. The State Athletic Commission announced today it had accepted Shade's forfeit of $2,500 to substantiate the challenge.

Don't be surprised if Bulger signs Walker for a couple of matches this month. Jack believes that the best way to keep Mickey fit is by giving him plenty of work in the ring.

The Walker who defeated Britton, was a 100 per cent. better fighter than the one Boston and New England fans saw lose to Bogash and Malone after having won over Siegal, Griffith and Reed.

At 144 pounds, Walker was fast and as strong as the proverbial lion. He teased Britton around as if he were a child.

When Walker Scored He Shook Jack to His Soles

When Walker scored with a blow, he shook Britton to the very soles of his feet. And when the Morgan entry landed, Walker merely smiled and smashed to close quarters, where he counted with heavy punches to the body.

Walker will probably dodge the decision cities until the outdoor boxing season opens. He will then battle the best of the challenges at Boyle's Thirty Acres, which is in his native State. Mickey will prove a wonderful attraction for Tex Rickard, as he can fight. And a champion who can fight is a rare individual in these days of commercialized boxing.

CHICK SUGGS WILL MEET BOBBY DYSON

Chick Suggs, clever little colored boxer, will meet a worthy opponent when he collides with Bobby Dyson of New Bedford in a ten-round bout at the Naumkeag A. A. of Salem tonight.

Suggs lost a close decision to Mickey Travers at the Armory Club Tuesday night, but he asserts that his defeat was due to the fact that Travers failed to make the stipulated weight of 125 pounds ringside.

Suggs and Dyson will be about the same notch tonight. As the boys are evenly matched, a rugged contest is expected.

LANDIS PROBES TOURIST TILT

Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 8—Charges that rules applying to barnstorming exhibition baseball games were violated when a team of major league all-stars played a local team before sailing for the Far East recently are being investigated by Judge K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, it became known today.

Judge Landis.

The regulations stipulate that no touring team shall make use of more than three players who have performed in world's series games in any exhibition contest. When the major league stars played here four world's series men—Kelley and Meusel of the New York Giants and Hofmann and Bush of the Yankees—appeared in the line-up.

Judge Landis, apprised of the fact, sent a radio message to the team, on board the liner Empress of Asia, demanding an explanation. The major leaguers in return sent a message to Robert Brown, manager of the Vancouver team, asking him to inform the baseball arbiter of the details of the affair.

By ART CURLY.

An attractive array of soccer battles await the approval of Massachusetts fans with nearly all the clubs active in the National Cup, State Cup, or league matches.

George Craig

Four Greater Boston teams are interested in the second round of the National Cup competition, and there is no question these two games will draw the majority of the local enthusiasts.

Fore River field, Quincy will be the scene of another hot clash between the Granite City rivals. Fore River and Maple Leaf, Maple Leaf saves the shipbuilders a terrible scare two weeks ago in the first round of the State Cup series, when they were nosed out of the competition by a 4-3 score after holding a comfortable lead until twenty-five minutes from the final whistle. Another such close battle is anticipated by the Quincy fans who will be out in large numbers to root for their favorites.

The veterans will field practically the same eleven as in the last game, with perhaps the exception of Bobby Lewis. They will rely to a great extent on the ability of "Doddy" Craig to out-speed the opponents defence and garner the necessary goals. The Lyons brothers, Jacky and Jimmy, will also probably be in the lineup as they form the backbone of the team.

Frothingham Phibbs on Women in the Jury Box

By Nat. N. Dorfman

"WHAT are you reading, my dear?" asked Amanda Phibbs as her husband chuckled to himself over the Sunday paper.

"Oh, no," refuted the lord and paymaster of the household mirthfully. "A man will extend credit to his friends, but the only terms a woman knows when her husband comes home on Saturday night is cash. Women expect too much from man," cried Phibbs, "few years man had that one right woman couldn't got in on and that was the vote. Now they've got that and they're trying to make him the goat. That equal rights business has about reached its limit."

"Woman," commenced Phibbs with great stress, "Women are too tenderhearted. If a murderer on trial admitted his guilt and said he was sorry for his act and would never do it again, what would happen? The majority of 'em would cry with him and forgive him."

"That," answered Amanda, "is untrue. A great many men commit murder when they marry nice innocent girls like myself, and we women never forgive 'em for it, either. What other objections have you?"

"Woman's place is in the home," continued Phibbs.

"And by the same keen process of intelligent reasoning, a man's place is in the cellar," shot back the missus. "Ridiculous! Women have a better sense of justice than men and serve with greater enthusiasm."

"Of course they do," readily agreed Frothy. "They can't wait to hear all the scandal, and naturally their enthusiasm is unbounded. Would a jury of women ever acquit a dashingly beautiful woman of a serious crime?" Phibbs thought this was a poser and leaned back in triumph content that he had put over a ten strike.

"And tell me," asked the missus, "has a jury of men EVER convicted the same type of woman?"

This shot was entirely unexpected and Frothingham visibly showed his distress. There was a few moments of silence as Amanda gleefully eyed him.

"I read an article a little while ago," she went on, "how a man and wife have been picked to serve on the same jury. Now, what do you think of that?"

His Reason

A moment later along came a young fellow on a bicycle, who cried to the farmer to let him pass.

"Hey, there! Pull out and let me by!"

"Oh, I dunno if I am in any hurry," the farmer replied.

Judged by Appearances

A young man of fashion approached his prospective father-in-law. "Sir," he said, "your daughter has promised to marry me, and that may be all right. But one has to be careful these days. I'd like to know—just to be sure—is there any insanity in your family?" The old gentleman looked the young man up and down. "I'm afraid there must be," he said.

UNANSWERED

By La Monte Waldron

I MET her on the subway stair,

They lashed out at each passing male
The closing doors caught 'em.

Her temper rising I could see,
She yanked her bearded garments free
While some observers showed their glee

A baby in the seat behind—
One of the very naughty kind—
Took up the fringe and on it dined.
Yes, cooed and chewed and bleated.

The dame was speechless, nearly wild,
And hard-boiled creatures boldly smiled—
As though the kid were clever.

Why do the ladies wear such things
As dragging doo-dads, bearded wings,

Medbury Says a Husband Doesn't Have to Match His Wife's Gown

By John P. Medbury

THE latest fad among London [illegible] is to have their pets different [illegible] from the dresses they wear. This would please the ladies except those who are fond of horses.

A GIRL can buy any shade gown she wants but when it comes to getting a puppy or a kitten dyed [illegible].

WHEN she has a new gown she wants it to harmonize. The only time cats harmonize is on the back fence at midnight.

A BLACK cat is about the only one you can't dye and the women never use them except when they're in mourning.

ONE dame had two lavender dogs, three pink cats, five green goldfish and seven black canaries. Her husband came home one night, got a look at them all and then went out and shot his bootlegger.

ANOTHER woman had caught all the mice around the house and dyed them orange and red, until even the cats thought they had been drinking.

A WOMAN doesn't care whether or not her husband matches her gown; all she wants him to do is to pay for it.

STILL, some women do want their husbands and gowns to harmonize. One woman had a red-haired dress and she wanted him to be the same color and she got her wish because the dress was so short her husband took one look at it and blushed all over.

STILL had another one which was indigo, and the only way she could make him match that was to rag until he was blue in the face.

ADAM and Eve were really the only happy couple this world has ever had, and that was probably because they were color blind.

CONFESSIONS OF A GROUCH

I DON'T believe Central gives you the wrong number every time you call. Sometimes she doesn't answer at all.

I don't give a rap what party is elected to office. Both ignore me with the same enthusiasm.

I don't believe everything my wife tells me. She can't be in the right all the time.

I don't envy the fellow who owns a big automobile. He usually has to take care of 647 relatives which are suddenly thrust upon him when he can only conveniently accommodate seven in the car outside his family of six.

I don't believe all men are born free and equal. Some have less will power than others and get married.

I don't believe the country is used to prohibition. We've had professional humorists here for years who've been spreading the dry propaganda.

I don't take any stock in the Government reports that food prices are coming down. I won't take any stock in them until my grocer and butcher do.

I don't enjoy poetry or the opera. I don't believe in being a hypocrite just to be stylish.

DO YOU SHIELD YOUR CHILDREN FROM TEMPTATION?

Copyright, 1922, by International Feature Service, Inc.

Parents, it is all right to have confidence in your children, but many parents are waking up too late to the fact that they have placed too much reliance on the supposed principles of their children.

It is unwise to subject children or young folk to temptations with the idea that home teaching will protect them from evil.

Some parents have the impression that temptation strengthens character, and so they take a big chance.

Why does the Lord's Prayer say, "Lead us not into temptation"?

Because it is a recognized fact that we are human, even the best of us, and none knows just when temptation may become too strong.

For one hundred times your child may withstand damaging experiences, but the one hundred and first time it may fall.

Young persons cannot be expected to understand the disastrous results brought about by these little steps, one at a time, till the edge is reached.

Parents, shield your sons and your daughters as long as you can.

WHEN KNIGHTHOOD WAS IN FLOWER

See This Romance of Princess Mary Tudor Starring Marion Davies in Super Motion Pictures Which Are Now Showing at the Park Theatre

By Charles Major

AT one time, I remember, Brandon said: "I was safe enough before that afternoon. I believe I could have gone away and forgotten her eventually, but our mutual avowal seems to have dazed me and paralyzed every power for effort. I sometimes feel hopeless and although I have success both in keeping away from her since then, I often find myself wavering in my determination to leave England. That was what I feared if I followed the matter to go to the point of being sure of her love. I only wanted it before, and very easily made myself believe it was impossible, and not for me. But now that I know she loves me it is like holding my breath to live without her. I feel every instant that I can hold it no longer. I know only too well that if I but see her face once more I shall breathe. She is the very breath of life for me. She is mine by the gift of God. Curses upon those who keep us apart." Then musingly and half interrogatively: "She certainly does love me. She could not have treated me as she did unless her love was so strong that she could not resist it."

"Let no doubt of that trouble you," I answered. "A woman like Mary cannot treat two men as she treated you. Many a woman may love, or think she loves many times, but there is only one man who receives the full measure of her best. Other women again, have nothing to give but their best, and when they have once given that they have given all. Unless I have known her in vain, Mary, with all her faults, is such a woman. Again I say, let no doubt of that trouble you."

Brandon answered with a sad little smile from the midst of his reverie. "It is really not so much the doubt as the certainty of it that troubles me. Then, starting to his feet: "If I thought she lied to me; if I thought she could wantonly lead me on to suffer so for love, I would kill her, so help me God."

"Do not think that. Whatever her faults, and she has enough, there is no man on earth for her but you. Her love has come to her through a struggle against it because it was her master. That is the strongest and best, in fact the only, love, worth all the self made passions in the world."

"Yes, I believe it. I know she has faults; even my partiality cannot blind me to them, but she is as pure and chaste as a child, and as gentle, strong and true as—as a woman. I can put it no stronger. She has these, her redeeming virtues, along with her beauty, from her plebeian grandmother, Elizabeth Woodville, who, with them, won a royal husband and elevated herself to the throne beside the chivalrous Edward. This sweet plebeian heritage bubbles up in the heart of Mary, and will not down, but neutralizes the royal poison in her veins and makes a goddess of her." Then with a sigh: "But if her faults were a thousand times as many, and if each fault were a thousand times as great, her beauty would atone for all. Such beauty as hers can afford to have faults. Look at Helen and Cleopatra and Agnes Sorel. Did their faults make them less attractive? Beauty covereth more sins than charity —and maketh more grief than penitence."

Princess Mary started up in bed when the king broke in the door

After his month in Newgate with the hangman's noose about his neck all because of Mary's cruel neglect, I wondered if her beauty would so easily atone for her faults. I may as well tell you that he changed his mind concerning this particular doctrine of atonement.

As soon as I could leave Brandon, I had intended to go down to Windsor and give vent to my indignation toward the girls, but the more I thought about it, the surer I felt there had, somehow, been a mistake. I could not bring myself to believe that Mary had deliberately permitted matters to go to such an extreme when it was in her power to prevent it. She might have neglected her duty for a day or two, but, sooner or later, her good impulses always came to her rescue, and, with Jane by her side to urge her on, I was almost sure she would have liberated Brandon long ago—barring a blunder of some sort.

So I did not go to Windsor until a week after Brandon's release, when the king asked me to go down with him. Wolsey and de Longueville, the French ambassador-special, for the purpose of officially offering to Mary the hand of Louis XII, and the honor of becoming queen of France.

The princess had known of the proposed arrangement for many weeks, but had no thought of the present forward condition of affairs, or she would have brought her energies to bear upon Henry long before. She could not bring herself to believe that her brother would really force her into such wretchedness, and possibly he would never have done so, much as he desired it from the standpoint of personal ambition, had it not been for the petty excuse of that fatal trip to Grouche.

All the circumstances of the case were such as to make Mary's marriage a veritable virgin sacrifice. Louis was an old man, and an old Frenchman at that; full of French notions of morality and immorality, and besides, there were objections that cannot be written, but of which Henry and Mary had been fully informed. She might as well marry a leper. Do you wonder she was full of dread and fear, and resisted with the desperation of death?

So Mary, the person most interested, was about the last to learn that the treaty had been signed.

Windsor was nearly eight leagues from London, and at that time was occupied only by the girls and a few old ladies and servants, so that news did not travel fast in that direction from the city. It is also probable that, even if the report of the treaty and Brandon's release had reached Windsor, the persons hearing it would have hesitated to repeat it to Mary. However that may be, she had no knowledge of either until she was informed of the fact that the king and the French ambassador would be at Windsor on a certain day to make the formal request for her hand and to offer the gifts of King Louis.

I had no doubt Mary was in trouble, and felt sure she had been making affairs lively about her. I knew her suffering was keen, but was glad of it in view of her treatment of Brandon.

A day or two after Brandon's liberation, I had begun to speak to him of the girls, but he interrupted me with a frightful oath. "Vaxsden, you are my friend, but if you ever mention their names again in my hearing you are my friend no longer. I will curse you."

I was frightened, so much stronger did his nature show than mine, and I took good care to remain silent on that subject until —but I am going too fast again, I will tell you of that hereafter.

Upon the morning appointed, the king, Wolsey, de Longueville and myself, with a small retinue, rode over to Windsor, where we found that Mary, anticipating us, had barricaded herself in her bedroom and refused to receive the announcement. The king went up stairs to coax the fair young damsel through two inches of oak door, and to induce her, if possible, to come down. We below could plainly hear the king pleading in the voice of a Bashan bull, and it afforded us some amusement behind our hands. Then his majesty grew angry and threatened to break down the door, but the fair bestirred maintained a most persistent and provoking silence throughout it all, and allowed him to carry out his threat without so much as a whimper. He was thoroughly angry, and called for us to come up to see him "work obedience from the self willed hussy."—a task, the magnitude of which he underrated

To save broken buttons and the holes cut by them, take the buttons off the shirt front and in their place make buttonholes. Then stitch the buttons on to a broad piece of tape and slip them through the made buttonholes. They may then be removed for washing, and the one set of buttons will serve for every shirt.

Correct English

1. What is the meaning of opus? Of opuscle? How is opuscle pronounced?
2. What is the meaning of, "With him gardening is more of an avocation than a vocation"?

ANSWERS.

1. An opus is a literary or musical work or composition. Opuscle, pronounced "o-puskul," is a small or unimportant work.
2. A vocation is one's main calling or business in life. An avocation is a diversion or minor occupation which takes one from his vocation.

When a Girl Marries—By Ann Lisle

"IF you are really asking me, Loch, beloved of my heart, and not issuing a warning, I should say we had better, for the safety of all concerned, keep the lady where we can watch her. What worries me is that after today she may decide to leave us. And what could we possibly do to prevent it?"

I devoted the rest of my Sunday morning at Dreamwold to writing my weekly note to Jim. It was the custom for Rosa to send this along with her own letter. It humiliated me beyond words to be compelled to ask the favor of her, but it was my only way of getting in touch with Jim, so I put my pride in my pocket and I didn't put my caution there. And since the letter must go through Rosa's hands, I wrote—discretely.

Dinner, thanks to Rosa having gone off with Lennie Stone, was a peaceful and pleasant affair. I've never felt closer to Virginia, nor more grateful for the privilege of being close to her. The one thing that recurred like a refrain, but without any charming witchery re frains strive to have, was the unhappy thought of Phoebe's estrangement from her sister. Even if I had not been forbidden to do one thing about this, I'm not sure that I would have ventured to break the perfect harmony with what might have been a crashing discord.

After dinner I ran over to Mason Towers to call on Evvy's decidedly shadowy parents and toast about her. She had been away for long weeks and though Tom and I had done everything in our power to get some word to her, we were not sure that she had received a single message. It was decidedly irritating to thing that she might still be wearing herself out in a wild goose chase for Dick West, when I am convinced that he's come back to the scene of action, as his tribe has a way of doing.

Evvy's mother regaled me with a choice list of whimpering complaints. Then she informed me that Lucy is out in the Lake Lodge region having a fine time of never thinking of her poor old mother. The atmosphere of Mason Towers made me sorrier than ever for Evvy. I don't wonder she's in no hurry to come home. I have to confess to a feeling of relief when my visit at Mason Towers was concluded and I could return to Dreamwold.

The region itself brought back all too vividly the tragic death of Sheldon Peath and the day when, out on the path near the spot where Sheldon was killed, Evvy poured out the truth about her feeling for Sheldon Peake. I could almost hear her telling of the love she'd recognized when it was too late.

Every step of the way thronged with memories. Evvy's tragedy came first to mind. But it was followed by recollections of Lane Cecil's and the hens on gold piece he gave me once.

I found myself wondering if the day would ever come when I'd ask Virginia to get it out of the safe so I could send it to Lane. Our compact was if it if I needed a friend I'd send for him. But I've weathered some bad storms without calling on the "big brown Bear" to help me steer and so I suppose I'll go on without taking advantage of his generous offer.

I was just putting [illegible] on the back because I was convinced of this, when an [illegible] thought popped into my head.

"Ann Harrison," I admonished myself, "don't flatter yourself that you are a magnificent independent character! You know perfectly well that the reason you don't expect to have to send for Lane now is because Ralph Lacy's here and you know perfectly well that you can count on his friendship and aid."

When this thought was formulated, I jumped as if some one had shot the words at me from a rattling gun.

"Why—I didn't—know that!" I gasped as if in protest." I never —never thought of that a single time."

Then I scampered up the path to the house as if some one were pursuing me and the only important thing in life were to make good my escape. I found Virginia in the last touches to a bowl of beautiful lavender and white cosmos.

"The room's all dressed up sweetly for your friends, isn't it?" she asked with delight in her pretty flower effects.

"Did you do this just for my company?" I asked. "Jeanie, you are the dearest dear, when you let anyone nine through the ice and granite and other flinty surfaces down to where you live."

I put my arm about her as I spoke and she giggled with delight instead of withdrawing haughtily as I'm sure she would have done.

"I am—difficult, aren't I?" she asked. "Well, what's worth having is worth working for—as you might tell—Mrs. Neal Hyland if you happen to be discussing me with her."

"Jeanie!" I protested, helplessly floundering in the meshes of my promise to Phoebe. "Why don't you speak for yourself, John?"

Virginia turned suddenly and put her hand under my chin. She tilted up my face and, stared deep and deeper into my eyes. Then she kissed me lightly on the forehead.

"I may—some day," she said almost in a whisper. "Until the day when one of us finds that love is blcnder than our Harrison pride, will you call it a closed book?"

"I can't tell Phoebe what you just said!" I begged.

"It's closed unless you open it," I replied.

"I shall not open it. My—weakness is over" Virginia spoke with an air of finality. "I might regret my own—folly, if I didn't know I could count on you to take no advantage of it. But I do count on you."

"You—may," was wrung from me.

Saying this, I had a moment of panic. I realized that now I was committed to both Jennie and to Phoebe. Until one of them asked me to intercede for her with the other, there was nothing that I could do. And somehow I had a terrible feeling that if Jim came home to find Jennie and Phoebe estranged he would like nine.

A NATTY SUIT FOR THE LITTLE MAN

4170. This is a comfortable style, with new and pleasing features. The inserted pockets in the smock will please the "little fellow." The "knickers," too, boast of pockets that are large enough to hold the many things boys like to keep with them.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 2, 3, 4 and 6 years. To make the suit for a 3-year size will require 3⅝ yards of 32-inch material. For knickers alone 1⅛ yards is required.

MAN AND MAID

By Elinor Glyn

I LOOKED at the quaint little fourpost bed that I had found in that shop at Bath, a perfect specimen of its date, about 1698, with the old deep rose silk pressed over the shell carving.

I had an insane desire to open the drawers in the chest and touch her stockings and gloves. I had a wild feeling altogether I wanted my love, rebellious, unrelenting, anyhow! I just longed for her.

I resisted my stupidities and made myself leave the room and then tried to feel joy again in my leg.

Burton was turning on the lamps when I got back to the salon.

"There are rumors that something is going to happen, Sir Nicholas—talk of an armistice I heard when I was out. Do you think Foch will do it?"

But I know all these rumors and talks; we have heard them before, so this did not affect me. I could feel nothing, as time went on, but a pass onate ache. Why, why must she be so cruel to me? Why does she leave me all alone?

Alathea, I would never be so unkind to you. And yet I don't know; if I were jealous and angry, as I suppose she is, I could, of course, be much more cruel.

In despair, at ten o'clock I telephoned the Hotel de Courville.

Lady Thermonde had been there in the morning, I was told, but the Duchesse had left for Hautevine at two o'clock. No one was in the house now. No, they did not know Lady Hilda Bulteel's telephone number. She had no telephone, they supposed. No, they did not know the address.

Burton came and gave me my medicine, when I was in bed, and although I knew it was a canoufflaged sleeping draught, I drank it. I just could not bear it any longer.

But I only slept until 4, and now I am sitting up writing this, and I feel as if every queer force was abroad and that all sorts of momentous things are happening. Oh, when will daylight come?

* * *

I leaped from my bed. Yes, leaped! I had been dreaming that a surprise party of Germans were attacking the trench, and I was just rallying the men for a final dash when heavy guns began a bombardment which was unexpected. Oh, God! let me get up and over the top in time!

Wild with excitement, I was now wide awake.

Yes, there were cannons booming.

Had Bertha begun again?

What was happening?

Then I heard murmurs in the street. I rang the bell violently. I had slept very late. Burton rushed in.

"An armistice, Sir Nicholas," he cried joyously.

"It's true after all!"

An armistice! Oh, God!

So at last, at last we have won, and it has not been all in vain!

I shook with emotion. How utterly absorbed in my own affairs I had been not to have taken in that this was coming.

I was too excited all through breakfast to feel renewed anxiety about Alathea. I was accepting the fact that she had stayed with her mother. Surely, surely she would be in soon, now!

The occultist and his artist-craftsman would be arriving soon, at 11 o'clock, if the excitement of an armistice does not prevent them. I hope all that won't be going on when Alathea does come in.

All the servants have gone more or less crazy! Pierre hopped in just now, jolly old chap, and in his excitement embraced me on both cheeks!

(He has a wooden stump, not a smart-faceted thing like mine, but I shall not tell him that now.)

Antoine could not contain himself, and heavens knows what the undermen have not did!

I told them all to run out and see what was happening, but Pierre said no, the dejeuner of Monsieur must not be neglected. Time enough in the afternoon!

Eleven came and with it the occultist, and he luncheon time I had a second blue eye. But, Oh! the shouting in the streets and the passionate joy in the air!

The two men greened themselves upon keeping this appointment upon so great a day and indeed my gratitude was deep. But the same gladness did not hold me as when my leg was given back to me. Everything was now swallowed up in an overwhelming suspense.

What could have kept Alathea?

This was the most embarrassing moment of my life. One day I went to the theatre with my father. When the show was over I put my hand in his pocket to get my gloves which I had placed there before the show. Not finding them, I said: "Papa, where's my gloves?" All I could hear was: "I guess you've got the wrong pocket." "But, papa, I gave them to you," I said. I looked up and to my embarrassment I found my hand in a stranger's pocket.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

An omelette or a piece of fish, with fruit to follow, is said by one diet expert to be the ideal midday meal for a man or woman employed in an office.

* * *

To a pailful of warm water add two tablespoonfuls of ammonia or more, up to four tablespoonfuls. Wash the paper well over with this. It is best applied with a soft flannel. Now to half a pailful of warm water add two tablespoonfuls of turpentine; dip a leather into this, wring out, and wipe down the wall. This gives a good polish to the paper and makes it look like new again.

* * *

Black specks on mirrors are quite easy to remove. Dip a flannel in either spirits of wine or turpentine and rub the specks. Afterwards polish the glass with powdered whitening.

* * *

When stewing rhubarb add a pinch of salt or bicarbonate of soda. This neutralizes the acidity of the fruit, and less sugar is required. It is a good plan also to stew dates or figs with rhubarb, as they help to sweeten it.

* * *

The flesh of fish (without skin and bone) contains as much protein, ounce for ounce, as meat, but there is more waste in fish owing to the large proportion of bones and skin. The oily fish, such as sprats, sardines, herrings, mackerel and salmon are more nutritious than white fish.

The Barrier

"I have called," began the young man, nervously, "to speak to you about your daughter. Of course, you must have noticed that there is something between us——"

"No," interrupted Mr. Hardstaff, "but I'm sure there will be pretty soon." "Ah!" "Yes, the Atlantic Ocean. I'm going to send her abroad until she learns a little common sense."

Remarkable Radio Stunt

A remarkable stunt was successfully performed on the occasion of the recent appearance of Sir Harry Lauder at the Codman Memorial Chapel at Tufts College. Officials at WGI did not hear of his expected arrival until the morning of the day he was to appear, but between 10:30 and 11:55 that morning wire connection was established between the chapel, a quarter mile distant, and the broadcasting station. Microphones were placed in the chapel and a brief test made. Sir Harry Lauder began to speak at 12:05 and at 12:06 his voice and the entire repertoire was on the air.

IF BACK HURTS FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat less meat, also take glass of Jad Salts before breakfast occasionally

Too much meat may form uric acid, which excites the kidneys; they become overworked; get sluggish, ache and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region; you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to help neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus often ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in correcting kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Charles M. Schwab, when told recently, asked why Indianapolis has failed to make good as an automobile city on the scale planned. He was told that there had not always been the right relationship between ownership and management, that the one had too often been too far removed from the other.

Indianapolis, you know, aspired to become a second Detroit.

* * *

Somehow such hopes have been blighted. True, Indianapolis boasts such plants as the Marmon, Cole, Lafayette, Stutz H. C. S., National and Duesenberg, but there is no monster Ford or Buick or Studebaker or Chevrolet or Cadillac works.

* * *

But if Indianapolis has not succeeded in rivaling Detroit motorwise, it has other distinction galore.

I have never addressed a more capable looking audience than the 400 or more citizens who gathered at the luncheon of the Kiwanis Club. I had expected to meet not more than one-third that number. If their attentive attitude is any criterion, Indianapolis is extremely interested in anything and everything pertaining to the business outlook. Before reaching it, interviews with leaders, obtained in a tour piloted by William E. Trimble, let me call a roll of some of Indianapolis' distinguished men, rattled to me, gatling gun fashion, by one of the city's most forceful and progressive citizens, Homer McKee.

Indianapolis is:

* * *

Business conditions in Indianapolis today are moderately good, but not exuberantly so.

Personally, I regard the mental attitude of this city towards the business outlook as preferable to the extravagant, unrestrained notions I've encountered at some other centres.

* * *

We're all interested in men. It was significant to discover in this city that one of their leading bankers, Stoughton A. Fletcher, although only a little over forty, has won an enviable place in the regard and affections of the people. Like most aggressive, dynamic builders, he has made business mistakes, but it was to me peculiarly gratifying to come across a city where a leading banker is so cordially liked.

Incidentally, the Fletcher National Bank has resources of over $25,000,000.

* * *

I found the president of the largest bank in the State, Frank D. Stalnaker of the Indiana National Bank, rational and optimistic.

NEW HIGHS SET IN WIDESPREAD RECOVERY

Railroads and industrials were most active issues in a strong New York market, with several money at 5, dropping to 4¾ per cent.

New highs for the year were set by Associated Dry Goods, Baldwin, Alkali common and pref. pfd., American Water Works, National Lead, Public Service of New Jersey and Fisher Body, the last up 7 points.

STEEL TURNS UPWARD.

New highs in the widespread recovery were made by General Electric at 180, Mex. Pete at 238 and National Biscuit at 238, the last up 5 points. U. S. Steel added 2 points.

The major part of the list resumed its upward course under the stimulus of a broad demand for railroad shares, which advanced one to three points.

Large blocks of speculative industrials, particularly the coppers, also were bought, the trend of prices indicating a bullish sentiment on the part of large speculative interests.

ME SEABOARD HIGHER.

Gains of one to five points were registered by Kelsey Wheel, Mexican Petroleum, Tidewater Oil, People's Gas, American Tobacco, Texas Export, Pierce Oil preferred, Mathieson Alkali, American Car, American Sugar, Cuba Cane Sugar preferred, Associated Dry Goods and Remington Typewriter first preferred.

In the bond market U. S. securities developed moderate strength, gains ranging from 10 to 20 cents on $100. Speculative railroad mortgages and copper company lines were favorites in the domestic corporation list, rising large fractions to 3 points.

OPINIONS DIVIDED ON STEEL TONNAGE

U. S. Steel will publish its October unfilled tonnage statement November 10. Wall Street believes there will be a slight falling off in tonnage. On the other hand, manufacturers believe there will be another increase, due largely to demand for steel from railroads, auto and equipments.

Vote NO on Censorship

Unanimous Action of City Council Shows It Realizes Movies Should Not Be Under One-Man Power

The Boston City Council by a unanimous vote has declared itself against the proposed moving picture censorship bill, under which the chief of police of the State is given the power to tell the people of Massachusetts what moving picture shows they shall see and what moving picture shows they shall not see.

The action of the City Council is becoming the deliberative body of Boston, for it is an act in behalf of free speech, which is held more dear in Boston than anywhere in the world. The men in the City Council, who are, with only one exception, experienced in public affairs, know what it is to give one man such power over an instrumentality which not only gives pleasure to more people than was ever given to any people in the world before by any instrumentality, but an instrument which is developing a greater power to move the minds of people, to give them information, and to stir them into action than any instrumentality yet known, whether it be the human voice at public meetings, printed pamphlets or the newspapers.

Our forefathers, who knew that no country could be free where the instrumentalities by which thought and information are conveyed fell under the power of any one man or body of men, prohibited in the Constitution itself any State from monkeying with the freedom of speech and of the press and of the right to assemble, the only three methods then known for conveying thought and information and stirring up the people.

This question is to be submitted to the people at the coming election. We have every faith that they will confirm the judgment of Washington and of Jefferson by voting against this bill.

Getting Married

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

There is evidently a scarcity of husbands the world over. Out in Edgewater, N. J., an enterprising editor recently started a scheme for bringing together persons matrimonially inclined before a jury of their peers, who would decide whether they were fitted for one another and "award" wives and husbands as the case might be.

The idea seems to have held its sway for a few days and then to have been overwhelmed by satirical laughter.

Somewhere, in Paris, the difficulty of finding husbands in such that young girls desirous of being married have taken to wearing a small green ribbon, and have approached the Paris press to give publicity to their plan, and to urge young men similarly inclined to respond with answering green ribbons.

Thousands of men and women have the capacity to make a success of marriage, but lack the good fortune or address or magic to attract suitable mates.

Matrimony is like politics. The men most gifted at getting into office are not worth their weight in feathers once they are in. And lots of men who would behave admirably in office lack the political skill that would put them there.

And many a virtuoso at making love and winning hearts is wholly unqualified for success in the life-long business of matrimony.

Progress in All Things

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

Then a Frenchman beat the French altitude record, going up 32,866 feet. But he fell nearly eight thousand feet short of the world record held by the American Lieutenant MacCready, 40,800.

At Detroit one flier for a considerable time flew on the edge of his wings, so that there was no sustaining power in the machine. Every day the world is learning something about flying, increasing speed, increasing heights.

You remember how a few years ago broken down automobiles were scattered all along the road, puzzled mechanics trying to fix them. Now you rarely see one. Who would have believed twenty years ago that today one man would make more than a million automobiles every year, and that almost every boy in his teens would be an automobile driver? So it will be before long with flying machines.

Prohibitionists Hurt Lodge

We are utterly unable to understand the assumption of lack of intelligence on the part of the people of Massachusetts by the Boston Herald and the other Republican papers in announcing that Dr. Eliot and his group of prohibitionists, by their support of John A. Nicholls, the prohibitionist candidate, are bolting Colonel Gaston and are indirectly helping Senator Lodge.

This is the sheerest nonsense. The Nicholls candidacy is bound to hurt Senator Lodge and bound to aid Colonel Gaston. Three-quarters of the real, ardent prohibitionists' vote is in the Republican party. They are dissatisfied with Senator Lodge, and have a right to be. Those who vote for Mr. Nicholls on the Prohibition ticket will be voting against Mr. Lodge, for they could not under any circumstances vote for Mr. Gaston because they are natural Republicans.

Capable Opponents

Mr. John F. Doherty, Democratic candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, is making some fine, clean speeches such as he is quite capable of making. The State is fortunate in having two such men as Mr. Doherty and Alvan T. Fuller opposing each other for Lieutenant-Governor.

No matter how the election goes or what the fate of the Governor may be, the State will be represented by either of these men in a way that she has always liked to be represented

Selfish Men and Women

By Winifred Black

WHAT does he see in her—not a thing, but somebody who'll be easy to boss, not a thing but a little clinging good-natured goose who'll do exactly as he says and never have a thought of her own as long as she lives!

That's what he likes about her. That's what all men like. That's why the fools are always married first and always stay married longest.

So says Miss Fanny Hurst, the clever woman who in her stories makes us all laugh when she wants us to laugh and cry when she wants us to cry.

Do you agree with Fanny?

I'm afraid I don't—not entirely.

I don't quite agree either with what Miss Hurst says when she declares that this is a man-made scheme.

Man-made—I don't quite like that word.

Women are not half so easily fooled as men.

Women judge a man by what he does and not by what he says. Men will believe anything any woman tells them. If she will only coax him into thinking that she's dying of love for him and really can't help herself—poor little dependent, innocent thing!

But back of all that I don't think either Jack or Jill has much to do with chasing a mate.

Jack thinks he's making up his own mind when he decides to be married. Haven't you seen Jack sitting in a corner watching the girls go by? This one is too tall—that one is too short—this one is too quiet—that one is too lively—this one is too clever—that one is too dull—and——

And it's the same way with Jill.

Poor Jill—bless her heart!—she didn't choose the poor boy—not she! Something bigger and wiser, and older and stronger than a dozen Jill's or a score of poo- or rich boys did all that.

And in a hundred years from now Jack's great-grandsons and Jill's great-granddaughters will prove the case for Old Mother Nature. See if they don't—Miss Fanny Hurst, and all her brains and all her ability to the contrary—notwithstanding.

Tunnel Needed

Editor Boston American:

Narrow, traffic-congested Chelsea street in Charlestown is a shame to the city of Boston. That roughly paved thoroughfare is the direct outlet to Lynn and the northern cities and towns of the State. Every night for several hours the dense crawling, halting jam of vehicles and street cars drifts along and over the narrow bridge. A tunnel from the city proper under the river to at least Chelsea square is absolutely needed to relieve the situation. How soon will it be achieved? AUTOIST.

Raw Deal

Editor Boston American:

What a raw deal the ex-service men are getting from the richest government in the world. A nation that always has its purse open for anything that is foreign. It is unhuman and deceitful to less the boys around little more shoe. After all the promises and cheers we gave them when they were on their way to give their all to make (?) this world safe for democracy. They are now getting a sample of the sort of democracy they fought and suffered for by dying in doorways like rats. What disgrace.

If that soldier who served as symbol, that we buried amid pomp and fuss in Washington, could turn in his grave and stand up in his tomb, what would he think? What would he say? He would say, "America, you are shamed and disgraced before the world" The money gougers claim that patriotism should not be paid for in dollars and cents. In the name of common sense how else can they be partly repaid? Money is what they sorely need. Decorations and citations are good to look at, but that's all.

Lure of the Stage

Editor Boston American:

I am a girl of eighteen and I have a strong leaning for the stage. Our family is in comfortable circumstances and my parents absolutely refuse to grant my wish, though I am confident I should succeed, at least enough to earn my own living, which I desire, above all things. Would I be justified in running away? I feel a strong urge, and if I do not get a chance to try, I shall think all my life that I might have become a great actress. It is distasteful to me to think that I shall have to settle down to humdrum housekeeping and I have no desire to get married. I need advice.

Will you kindly give me the address of the woman that asked for clothing to make over for her children? MRS. A. J. S.

ED. NOTE—The above woman has been cared for. The address of another needy woman has been sent.

For Mother of Ten

Editor Boston American:

Noticed in the "Helping Hand Column" where Mrs. I. F. O. would like clothes for her three small children. I have a suit case full of clothes that are too small for my daughter, who is four years old. If they would be of any help I would be pleased to let some one have them. I. M.

ED. NOTE—A deserving mother of ten will be notified of this offer.

Shoes Spoken For

ED. NOTE—The shoes will be forwarded to Mrs. E. P.

Baby Carriages

Editor Boston American:

Would you please send me the address of Mrs. E. T., as I have a baby carriage and a few things I would give her. F. M. K.

ED. NOTE—Mrs. E. T. is being cared for. We are sending you another worthy person.

Editor Boston American:

I have a good baby carriage and other things I could give Mrs. E. T. MRS. I. R.

ED. NOTE—Mrs. E. T. has been answered. Another mother in need of a carriage will be sent you.

Haekel's Brain Measured

BERLIN, Nov. 3.—Do great brains make great men? An interesting contribution toward a final answer to this question, which has long occupied the attention of students of the mind and biologists, has just been made by an examination of the brain of the great German naturalist and philosopher, Ernest Haeckel, by Professor Friedrich Maurer of the University of Jena.

Observation of a large number of human brains has shown that even men of very mediocre thinking powers may have heavy and deeply furrowed brains, usually accepted as signs of strong intelligence. Haeckel's brain, which has been weighed, measured, photographed and subjected to a minute scrutiny by Dr. Maurer, is of the large, deeply furrowed sort. The investigator reaches the conclusion, nevertheless, that there are definite characteristics in the brain of the famous German that indicate the superior quality of his mind and are proof of the parallelism of physical structure and mental activity.

Professor Maurer holds that it is not so much the quantity of the brain as its quality that matters, and that this is revealed in the characteristics of Haeckel's brain.

Two qualities of Haeckel's mentality are strikingly represented in the shape and development of his brain. Haeckel was what German psychologists describe as an "eye man"—that his thinking was largely based on visualization. He was a great observer of nature and the appearance of things. In his presentation of ideas he was much given to the pictorial and concrete.

He was a great traveler and preserved vivid mental pictures of what he had seen, as is shown by his descriptions. In the study of minute plant and animal organisms and structures he excelled in discovery through the eye.

This most pronounced feature of Haeckel's mind Professor Maurer finds paralleled by an unusually high development of those brain centres associated with seeing. Curiously enough, those centres in the white race are usually not as well developed as in the savage race that still depend for their success in the struggle for existence on keen observation. So that it would seem that Haeckel carried into his scientific work one of the superiorities of the more primitive man.

SEEN AND HEARD

THE wooden tassel which is hanging today from the Venetian lamp before the altar of St. John the Evangelist (Episcopal) Church, Bowdoin street, carved and gilded, was picked up this Summer at Chalons-sur-Marne, France, from the debris and wreckage of the high altar in the Cathedral of St. Etienne, by one of the clergy of this church and brought to Boston.

All those who go to the circus and derive enjoyment upon seeing midgets will be grieved to learn of the untimely decease of ARTHUR PAGE, a resident of New York, known as the smallest man in the world. Page, who traveled the world over with circuses and theatrical troupes, was but thirty-two inches high and forty-four years old.

Peabody Museum of Salem is lending Boston bookstores for exhibition purposes a collection of whaling and other maritime implements of the 1830-40 period when JACKSON and VAN BUREN were Presidents. Many old-timers say the harpoon labeled "double-flued" should be marked instead "double-fluked," named from resemblance of its points to the palms or flukes of an anchor.

REV. A. B. COE, who has recently been installed pastor of the Broadway, Winter Hill, Congregational Church, was twenty-one months in the army during the World War. He served as first lieutenant of field artillery and then was fourteen months with the Second Division in France and Germany. He was graduated from Yale Divinity School in 1922, and his wife was graduated from Wellesley in 1919.

Now that petrol and car prices have been reduced there is but one drawback toward making 1923 a record season. It remains for the motor taxation to be reduced in line, as here is a heavy charge which is no longer justifiable.

Whoever heard of laborers having music with their every-day frugal lunch? Men employed on the building under construction at Federal, Milk and Devonshire streets are accorded this unique privilege. A hardware concern on Federal street, having a radio department, receives concerts from Medford Hillside every day between 12 and 1. The men enjoy it.

DR. J. P. HOYT of St. Petersburg, Florida, has been taking in Boston and New England in an automobile trip from his home State, and thinks Boston a great place to renew one's youth. He has a number of friends in this city. He is the oldest of the 1,400 living graduates of Yale Divinity School.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON TYPEWRITERS

By Garrett P. Serviss

WE all use typewriting machines, and it is no longer "bad form" to write other than business letters with them. Authors "composing" on typewriters find that the machine steadies the course of thought, like an improved rudder or steering gear. I write much more deliberately and with greater care, composing whole sentences in advance, when I use my typewriter. If I write with the pen thoughts glide more freely, wander more easily and are less exactly wrought out.

The typewriter is a self-revealer for its user. It picks out his defects of nervous action, slips of memory, strainings and blunderings of attention and misdirected, automatic movements. It is a mental mirror for you, by consulting which you may correct some of these faults and infelicities.

The application of the principle of the typewriter to typesetting for print brings out precisely similar facts. The prevailing proofsheet errors are not the same now as they used to be in the days of setting type by hand from boxes. It is interesting to read over a proof in printers' type of something that you have written on your machine, and see how other of the same kind of mistakes that you yourself committed have been added by the manipulator of the printing machine.

He, too, has dropped and inverted letters, just as you have done, and for the same apparent reasons. The dropping of letters in the middle of words seems to be due principally to haste, resulting in too light a touch upon some of the letters so that the levers fall short of reaching the drum, and the carrier does not move. I believe that certain letters are more often dropped than others by certain persons.

A person who finds himself habitually dropping letters in this way when writing rapidly should study and practice uniformity of touch. The fault is one to be corrected not only for the sake of better typewriting, but because, like a flaw in a piece of metal, it is likely to extend much farther than is apparent at a hasty glance. It gives you a bias as to where you need reannealing. You may be unconsciously dropping other things besides letters.

The inversion of letters appears to be due to two principal causes: First, the bad practice (of which professional typists are, I suppose, never guilty), of looking at the letters as you strike them instead of keeping your eyes fixed on the copy, or on the paper as the growing line of print develops, and watching that; and, second, misdirection of the fingers, which accidentally hit letters adjacent to the one intended to be hit.

Longer words are by no means exempt from similar misplacements of their component letters—just this moment I have been writing "exepmt" for exempt—and the resulting combinations, if taken out of their context would often be as incomprehensible as the words of an unknown language. I once wrote the mysterious word "resistry," and spent some time in finding out that it represented the patched-up partial remains of serenity. Here both inversions and skipping of letters had been in play.

But, to return to my text, the typewriting machine is a good detector of some of the imperfections of the human machine, showing where it needs a drop of oil or a little refitting. And as a detective of personality a typewritten page almost ranks with finger prints.

Squirrel Barred From White House

Pig started the day by visiting Mr. Christian as usual. Mr. Christian happened to be out. But in his desk—a handsome mahogany affair—were a number of peanuts. Pig knew nothing about the mechanism of the desk and proceeded to gnaw her way in from the outside and most prominent corner.

An attendant got her away before she accomplished her dire aim, but not before the desk was defaced. She was elected.

So she went to the desk of a stenographer who had just completed about fifty letters for the President's signature. Bad weather outside, so the letters looked like a Chinese laundry ticket. Pig tracked them up.

The old girl subsided for a moment until the Cabinet meeting. Then she went to the crowded executive office and started a hunt for sustenance. While an extremely valuable Cabinet member was talking to the nation through the press, Pig mad- a flying leap for the cider and started for his pocket. So the matter was taken up with the President and the door were closed.

Today the most important and certainly the busiest occupation of the White House police squad is watching Pig. She will not listen to reason and the moment a door is opened to admit some welcome visitor she sneaks in.

Laddie Boy and the White House cat are not of much assistance. Pig cleaned up the cat in open combat and Laddie Boy gives her plenty of room.

As a result of this it is rumored in circles close to the White House that Pig is going on an extremely long journey
